McGILL

'Reinforcing The Wicked—'

Early in Winston Churchill's first volume of his war memoirs — "The Gathering Storm" — he wrote:

"It is my purpose, as one who lived and acted in those days, first to show how easily the tragedy of the Second World War could have been prevented; how the malice of the wicked was reinforced by the weakness of the virtuous; how the structure and habits of democratic states, unless they are welded into larger organisms, lack those elements of persistence and conviction which alone can give security; how, even in matters of self-preservation, no policy is pursued for even 10 or 15 years at a time . . ."

At Bermuda in June the Americans, British and French will be seeking a policy which will not reinforce the malice of the wicked, but one which will, instead, weld the democratic states into an organism which will, it is hoped, endure for much longer than 10 or 15 years.

Problem

At hand is the London Times with a complete report of the Attlee speech which created the teapot tempest a few days ago.

A reading of it demonstrates beyond any doubt that certain elements of the American press published distorted versions, and that wire services generally did a most inadequate job. Rarely has there been more convincingly presented the case for interpretive reporting than in this particular story of the Attlee speech on the American constitutional problem.

It was not an anti-American speech. It was not made in haste. Even his remarks about the relative power of Joe McCarthy and the President, unless lifted from context and given a deliberate twist, are much milder than American commentators have said. Some of the American press had stories from their correspondents quoting Attlee as saying the President was a "captive" of McCarthy. Certainly none can dispute necessary interpretation was lacking, even in the news services, and without it readers were without a balanced picture.

Attlee discussed the problem of the American Chief Executive's relationship with Congress and of how that body must be persuaded to give him power in policy matters. He spoke of Franklin Roosevelt's political skill in that matter. He said Harry S. Truman had managed to obtain congressional support by "buttressing himself with two great senators, Vandenberg and Connally, but sometimes Congress seemed to take the bit between its teeth and one wondered sometimes who was more powerful, the President or Senator McCarthy . . . one of the disadvantages of the American system of democracy was that it was sometimes hard to find where the effective power lay."

Now, obviously, this is quite true. There was no malice or anger in it. For some weeks, during the Bohlen hearings, all of us wondered who was the more powerful, McCarthy or the President.

The Point

As we turn toward June and Bermuda, the Attlee questions become even more pertinent than when he made them. There already is before the Congress an amendment by Senator Bricker which would take away what small powers the President has to make agreements with other nations.

Attlee, specifically stating he was not attacking the American Constitution, but merely calling attention to the fact it divided power between the President and the Congress, recalled Woodrow Wilson and the League of Nations; he noted the President wants more exports but Congress doesn't; that the President asks one thing, the Congress does another; the President makes a great speech, but it is the President's; the Congress may ignore it if it wishes.

It was all true; as we well know. And now, with Bermuda ahead, we know it even better. What can the President promise that he can carry out without the later consent of Congress? Nothing. Nothing at all.

Suspect Is Slain As Police Trail Brothers to Safe

By KEELER McCARTNEY

A shotgun blast—and death in the eerie dawn—Sunday climaxed a dramatic "cops and robbers" chase for which the real-life script might have been written by a movie scenarist.

For, police said, the "twist" to the story was the fact two brothers unknowingly led police to the scene of a burglary. There, death took over. One of the brothers died under police fire.

The victim, according to DeKalb County Police Chief Hoyt Sutton, was B. B. Dalton, 40, of 152 Rawson St., S. W., who went down under a shotgun blast fired by DeKalb Police Lt. C. M. Cloud.

WARNING SHOT

Dalton's brother, Fred Kelly Dalton, 36, also of the Rawson St. address, who halted when a warning shot was fired, was arrested on suspicion of burglary, and was being held for questioning in connection with numerous safe robberies in Atlanta and DeKalb County.

Chief Sutton said the chase began when Atlanta Detectives E. F. Jackson and J. L. Carney received a tip that an attempt had been made to rob a safe in Decatur, but that the robbers had failed in a first attempt and had returned to Atlanta for additional tools.

Soon after receiving the tip, Carney and Jackson observed an automobile similar to the one described in the information. They placed the car under surveillance, and radioed DeKalb County police for help.

CAR ABANDONED

At College Avenue and Simpkins Street, two men in the car abandoned the vehicle and disappeared. Lieutenant Cloud and DeKalb Patrolmen C. W. Hopkins and R. W. Morris arrived to join Carney and Jackson. They began a systematic search of buildings in the area.

Cloud, Hopkins and Morris discovered a window broken in the Decatur Chemical Co. at 1313 East Ponce de Leon Ave. Their flashlights revealed the combination had been knocked off the safe inside the chemical company.

The officers forced a door and entered the building. Morris began a search of the east side of the building, Hopkins started down the west side, and Cloud, slightly behind the others, moved down the center, armed with a shotgun.

B. B. Dalton, according to Sutton, emerged from behind a desk and raised a heavy hammer

Mom, Friend Face Drinking Charge

Constitution State News Service

JACKSON, May 24 — A 7-year-old Doraville boy drowned at Jackson Lake today when he plunged from a motorboat, and his mother and an Atlanta man have been jailed on charges of operating a motorboat while under the influence of alcohol, according to Sheriff J. D. (Bud) Pope of Butts County.

The sheriff said the boy, Gene Lyns, was drowned about 11:45 a. m. and that rescue workers searched until 3:20 before recovering the body.

JAIL COUPLE

Arrested and jailed on charges of operating a motorboat while under the influence of alcohol were Mrs. Grace Lyns of Anderson, S. C., and Doraville, and A. L. Vaughan, employee of a soft drink firm in Atlanta, the sheriff said.

The only other occupant of the boat was Tony Lyns, 9, brother of the drowned boy.

Joel Crane, Butts County Coroner, said an inquest was started today but was postponed until Tuesday in order that witnesses could be questioned thoroughly.

NEARED SHORE

Sheriff Pope quoted witnesses as saying that the child fell into 12 or 15 feet of water as the boat neared land about one-half mile from Jackson Lake Inn.

Mrs. Lyns told the sheriff that the two boys were her children by her first husband. She said she married again and is also divorced from her second husband, who is now in the Army.

Pope said the arrests of Mrs. Lyns and Vaughn were his first under the new Georgia law aimed at persons operating motorboats while under the influence of intoxicants.

He also said the drowning was the first one of the year in the Butts County area covered by the lake and that more than 100 persons have been drowned in the lake since the dam was built in 1909.

Delay Threatens A-Cannon Test

LAS VEGAS, Nevada, May 24 — (INS) — Bad weather threatened tonight to cause the postponement of history's first firing of an atomic artillery shell.

The shot, to be made with a huge 280-mm. cannon, has been scheduled for tomorrow morning, but the Atomic Energy Commission said tonight that, because of the weather, there was less than a 50-50 chance that it would take place at that time.

Romulo Runs As 3d Party Candidate

MANILA, Monday, May 25—(INS)—The Philippines' presidential contest became a three-cornered race today with the formation of a third party by Carlos P. Romulo, who bolted the Liberal Party convention that renominated President Elpidio Quirino.

The third candidate is Ramon Magsaysay, standard bearer of the Nacionalista Party, who resigned as Quirino's defense secretary earlier this year.

Romulo's delegates stalked out of the convention after being defeated on a motion to make the presidential nomination by secret ballot.

90 DEGREES

Peak Heat, Less Winds, Due Today

Georgia's sweltering weather—which the Atlanta Weather Bureau describes as "about normal for July"—is slated to hang on for another two days as a heat wave covers the entire Southeast.

Thousands of perspiring Atlantans suffering under the city's 90-degree high Sunday headed for country lakes, streams, parks, and swimming pools to cool off.

And it appears Monday will be another day of searching for methods to beat the heat. "Fair and continued hot" is a prediction which applies to all Georgia, Alabama and South Carolina, the forecaster says, adding: "And we aren't forecasting any rain."

But Atlantans could get consolation from one fact—it was hotter elsewhere in the state Sunday. Savannah and Valdosta both recorded 98 degrees; Albany had 97; Augusta and Alma 96, and Macon and Rome, 95.

The story was the same in other Southern cities: Columbia, S. C., and Jacksonville, Fla., had 98; Charleston, 97; Montgomery, Ala., 95, and Chattanooga, Tenn., and Meridian, Miss., 94.

Atlanta's weather was the hottest so far this year, but no records were reached. Record for May 24 in Atlanta is 92 degrees and temperatures of 97 have been recorded during May, the forecaster said. Low reading Monday is slated to be 68; Sunday's was 70.

As though in a parting shot, the weather forecaster added:

"There's no winds in sight either."

Reds Handed New PW Offer As Talks Reopen in Secrecy To Avert Propaganda Duels

Allies Bar Newsmen at Key Session

By RUTHERFORD POATS

TOKYO, May 25—(AP)—The Korean truce negotiators went into secret session today to discuss a new Allied proposal for breaking the deadlock over Communist war prisoners refusing repatriation.

Allied negotiators called for the secret meetings as the talks resumed at Panmunjom after an eight-day recess. Communist delegates agreed to the Allied request after considering it during two brief recesses.

NEWS REPORT

The Allied suggestion for secret sessions was disclosed by Communist newsmen. A UN spokesman refused to say which side requested the closed sessions, but Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison did not hold his usual briefing when the morning session ended at 12:52 p. m. (11:52 p. m. Sunday, Atlanta time).

The Communists requested another session beginning at 2:30 p. m. (1:30 a. m. Monday EST) and the Allies agreed.

RECESS TALK

Harrison began reading his long statement detailing the new UN proposal when the morning session resumed after the 15-minute recess called by the Reds.

There have been closed truce sessions in the past to enable the negotiators to speak frankly without worrying about the world propaganda effect of their debates. No official reports of the meetings were given to correspondents.

Details of the new Allied plan were not disclosed and the UN command took unusual precautions to see that no information leaked from the morning meeting.

American military police kept all newsmen and other personnel away from the wide gravelled area around the truce hut and the tents where Allied negotiators confer during breaks in the meetings.

OFFICER MUM

Lt. Col. Milton Herr, the UN command spokesman, made a brief appearance to confirm that the talks were now in "executive session," but refused to answer further questions.

Communist newsmen said Harrison opened the crucial meeting today, at which the Allies presented their "final" compromise offer, by proposing that the new Allied prisoner formula be discussed in a series of "secret negotiation" sessions.

Gaullist Chief Asked To Form France Cabinet

PARIS, May 24 (AP)—President Vincent Auriol today asked Andre Diethelm, 57-year-old chief of the old De Gaulle forces in the French Parliament, to undertake the seemingly hopeless job of forming the nation's 19th postwar government.

Much to everybody's surprise, Diethelm failed to turn the invitation down cold. After a 15-minute parley with Auriol he said he'd announce his decision tomorrow after a talk with friends.

Diethelm, who heads the group of 72 deputies elected under the banner of Gen. Charles de Gaulle, is given little chance to succeed.

Diethelm was the second parliamentarian invited to take the helm. Earlier today, Socialist Guy Mollet did the expected and refused to have anything to do with the premiership.

Humphrey Sees Profits Tax Renewal

By CLAYTON KNOWLES

New York Times News Service Special to The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, May 24—George E. Humphrey, Secretary of the Treasury, predicted tonight that Congress would extend the excess profits tax for another six months to the end of the year as President Eisenhower has asked.

The top fiscal agent of the new administration told interviewers that he thought the Congress, respecting the "desire and wish of the American people for a sound dollar," would come to see that continuing this levy would be "the wise and sensible thing to do."

He asserted it would be "unfortunate for the country" if this tax, which he said would produce a billion dollars in revenue in the six months, were permitted to lapse on June 30, through inaction or excessive debate in the Congress.

Secretary Humphrey said the revenue that could be derived would bring "expenditures and income more nearly into balance." He left the clear impression, too, that the prospect of a 10 per cent reduction in personal income tax rates, effective Jan. 1, 1954, and a balanced budget on July 1, 1954, hinge in part at least on acceptance of the administration's revenue program.

The secretary bespoke his dislike for the excess profits tax during his appearance on the National Broadcasting Co.'s tele-

Gambling Raid Hits Fayette Roadhouse

State revenue agents Sunday raided a lavish syndicate-operated gambling house in Fayette County that reportedly has netted as much as $50,000 in one night, according to Charles D. Redwine, Georgia revenue commissioner.

Redwine said the raid of a roadhouse known as The Pines, five miles north of Fayetteville near the Clayton County line, was "the biggest in the state in four years."

Eleven revenue agents, headed by Eston Ricketson and aided by Fayetteville County Sheriff Hugh Stinchcomb, swooped down on The Pines at an early morning hour.

The agents placed charges against three men and confiscated dice, cards, crap tables, poker chips and other gambling equipment.

Johnny D. Tyler and two Negroes, who were not immediately identified, were charged with operating a gaming house and illegal possession of liquor, Redwine said.

The commissioner told The Constitution that he knows of a number of other gambling establishments operating in Fulton County and other sections of the metropolitan Atlanta area. He said they are operated "by a syndicate that was running The Pines."

Fires Roar As B-29s Hit Supply Hubs

SEOUL, Monday, May 25. (INS)—American B-29s last night smashed at the Communist supply centers of Chongyong and Haboktong, dumping 120 tons of bombs that touched off roaring fires in the already battered cities.

Air Force spokesmen said the Superfort raiders met with only "token opposition" in the attacks on the two Haeju Peninsula centers in North Korea.

Meanwhile, South Korean Capitol Division troops repulsed a 200-man Communist attack on the central front with bayonets and fists early Sunday, killing or wounding more than half of the assaulting force.

PAGEANTRY OF THE CORONATION

Anointing, Not Crowning Rite, Will Make Elizabeth a Queen

Second in a series of articles explaining the symbolism and significance of the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth June 2.

By THE BISHOP OF COVENTRY
The Rt. Rev. Neville Vincent Gorton

LONDON, May 24—Behind the pageantry, the trumpets, the television, the crowds and the wireless, what more of the Coronation is there?

I will try to put simply the poignant, human and personal thing. We all feel it. It is the thought of the young Queen, alone in this ceremony as it were with all there is to be laid upon her for life.

As she enters the west door of the great Abbey Church, waiting there will be the representatives of all the Commonwealth. We shall wish to help her, and we shall know for certain what is in her mind. She has told us it is to consecrate herself, to offer her life to her Lord, and through Him, to her peoples.

She will move up to the High Altar to the service. To understand this you can open the book of Common Prayer and read the service for the Communion and that of the consecration of a Bishop. The Coronation service, as is the consecration of a Bishop, is set in the framework of the Communion service.

The Queen is seated before the High Altar. The archbishop, accompanied by the officers of state, moves to the east, north, west and south and proclaims:

"I present to you Queen Elizabeth your undoubted Queen."

The trumpets sound. The Queen takes the oath to serve all her realms and territories overseas and to preserve the church, and lays her hand on the Gospel for the day, in the great, open Bible.

The Communion service then opens with the Epistle, the Gos-

Kin Welcome 'Ghost;' Whom Did They Bury?

BOONE, N. C., May 24—(AP)—Frank E. Shores had a family reunion today with the same relatives who wept at his funeral, while puzzled authorities planned to dig up the body that was buried in his place.

"It's like seeing a ghost," said his brother, J. Ballard Shores. "I was positive the man we buried was Frank, and now that I have seen him alive, it's almost impossible to believe.

"The dead man looked so much like my brother Frank that he even had two scars exactly where Frank has scars. Frank has odd-shaped ears and this fellow's ears were identical. It makes me shudder to think about it."

J. Ballard wasn't the only member of the Shores family to mistake the body of an unidentified stranger for Frank. His mother, his sister, another brother, and even his wife, identified the body.

They buried the man they thought was Frank in their family plot here Thursday and it wasn't until Saturday, when J. Ballard met Frank face-to-face, that the terrible mistake was revealed.

J. Ballard, who runs a motor court in Abingdon, Va., said the family became suspicious that something was wrong when they received a letter from Frank that had been written from his home in Oceana, W. Va., on May 14, just two days before the

Red Warning to Big 3 Viewed as Key Stand

Pravda Opposes Locarno As Base for German Treaty

By HARRISON E. SALISBURY
New York Times, News Service, Special to The Atlanta Constitution

MOSCOW, May 24—The Soviet statement asserting that the German unification issue was crucial, decrying the consequences of the Bermuda conference of the West—the suggestion of a new Locarno treaty and warning of ern Big Three was evaluated today by Western diplomats here as the most important pronouncement by Moscow on foreign affairs since Stalin's death.

The declaration, published today in Pravda, newspaper of the Communist Party, made these key points:

The Locarno approach to the German question, as proposed by Sir Winston Churchill, British prime minister, and any other solution not based on a reunited, peace-loving, democratic Germany are not acceptable to the Soviet Union.

SOUGHT TALK

(The British prime minister told the House of Commons May 11 that the time was ripe for a conference of the heads of state of the leading powers to try to settle some of the outstanding differences between East and West. He said that the Locarno treaty of 1925 provided a formula to satisfy the Soviet demand for security and the West's need for safety and freedom. Under the terms of the Locarno treaty, Britain had agreed to go to the aid of Germany if she were attacked by France, and vice versa).

Mr. Eisenhower's peaceful intentions, expressed in his address April 16, vanished in his May 20 speech, thus "reducing to nothing the positive significance" of the earlier address.

FEARS FRONT

If the Bermuda conference between the United States, Britain and France is designed to draft a "collusive" united front against the Soviet in preparation for a latter great-power conference, the Bermuda meeting is likely to heighten rather than lessen international tension.

The idea of any "preliminary conditions" to be carried out by the Soviet as evidence of good faith is rejected. Pravda asserted that such preliminary conditions were of the sort that might be imposed in war, by a victor upon the vanquished or, in peacetime, by a nation that had overwhelming military strength relative to an opponent with which it was dealing—a condition the Soviet declaration rejected.

The Korean and Austrian talks cannot be considered "tests" of Soviet good will since, in the opinion of the Soviet side, the difficulties in settling the questions now lie solely with the Western side.

COVERS PAGE

The new Soviet declaration, like a similar full-page statement replying to Mr. Eisenhower's April 16 address, was not signed. It was written in firm, polite language, with an absence of any invective and with occasional touches of humor that included a reference to Sir Winston's well-known anti-Communist sentiments. There also was a sarcastic reference to Senator McCarthy, described as the only person who could accuse Clement Attlee, British Laborite leader, of Communist sympathies.

The Soviet declaration found a good many positive aspects in Sir Winston's proposals in Commons, but took a dim view of Mr. Eisenhower's more recent speech and his proposals for the Bermuda conference. The Pravda statement said the Bermuda conference was a continuance of what it called "old methods" designed to line up nations against the Soviet on the basis of political ideology.

The declaration gave the most exhaustive examination to the German question which it appeared to hold to lie at the heart of the problem of a detente between East and West.

Engine Dead, Plane Crashes in Fog; 4 Pilots, Hostess, Mechanic Killed

ST. LOUIS, May 24—(AP)—A non-scheduled air liner, limping through a heavy fog with one of its two engines crippled, crashed here early today claiming the lives of six air line employes. One mechanic was injured.

Four fliers and a youthful hostess for the Meteor Air Transport Co. of Teterboro Airport, N. J., were killed instantly.

COMA VICTIM

A mechanic, Floyd Stanley Evans of Wright Village, Lodi, N. J., died about 10 hours after the crash without regaining consciousness. He suffered a skull fracture.

All aboard the plane were employees of the air line.

Three of the badly mangled bodies were found still strapped into their seats by safety belts, one about 60 feet from the wreckage.

The plane made one pass at the field and was turning for a second attempt when a wing dug into the earth. Hot oil spilled over the area but the wreckage did not burn.

Just before the crash in an undeveloped part of Lambert Municipal Airport, the pilot radioed "I got one engine, coming in for a landing."

The field's crash crew was standing by after receipt of this pilot's last message was verified.

The lone survivor, John Swart of Haskell, N. J., chief maintenance supervisor for the company, said he did not know of any engine trouble. He was riding in the rear of the plane.

"I'm hurt, but I'm lucky to be here," he told newsmen after being taken to St. Louis County Hospital in a serious condition.

FLYING BLIND

"There was a heavy fog and we were coming on instruments," he said.

Killed in the crash were: hostess Ann Marie Delicata, 23, New York; pilot Harold Carr, 30, White Plains, N. Y.; copilot Edward V. Raftery, 26, Elmsford, N. Y.; Arthur A. Ravetz, 29, New York, a copilot and instructor; and Ernest J. Forbes Rankin, 41, New York, a pilot.

The hostess had joined the company only three months ago.

'Interesting,' Washington Sources Say

New York Times News Service
Special to The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, May 24—Diplomatic officials found Pravda's front-page editorial of today an "interesting" indication of the attention Soviet leaders are now giving the subject of major power meetings to work out East-West differences.

The prominent play given a broad discussion of international problems and approaches to settling them were taken as meaning that Russia is really interested in a high-level get-together of the leaders of the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union. The generally moderate tone also pointed to this, in the view of some officials.

Whether Russia is equally interested in demonstrations of "deeds" and "good faith," which the United States regards as a necessary preliminary, was not immediately apparent. However, any signs of such interest will be eagerly sought by the experts who expect to give the full text a thorough going-over in the next few days.

Baseball Fans Swamp Knifer of N. Y. Widow

New York Times News Service, Special to The Atlanta Constitution

NEW YORK, May 24—A crowd of several hundred persons, watching a baseball game in Central Park, was transformed into a vengeful, frenzied mob for a few minutes this afternoon when a man fatally stabbed his estranged common-law wife in full view of the throng.

The slayer was clubbed with baseball bats, pummeled with fists and clawed with fingernails. Two mounted men rode their horses through the crowd. They found him, beaten into insensibility, lying alongside the woman he had killed. Nearby, mute evidence of the fury of the revengebent attackers, was a fistful of black hair torn from the man's head.

NO INKLING

There was no inkling of the tragedy that impended as two teams of the Spanish Catholic League, San Miguel and Mayaguez, played the second inning of their game on diamond 6, a park department ball field in North Meadow, almost in the center of the park opposite 97th Street. The skies were cloudless and serene; the summer-like day perfect for baseball, to play and to watch; the Mayaguez' were happy to be leading 4 to 2 and the San Miguels were out to even the score and come on to win if they could.

It was 4:40 p. m. Back of the baseline at first base with a cluster of other fans was Mrs. Carmella Olivo, 32-year-old widow, mother of a 10-year-old boy. With her was her sisters, Mrs. Virginia Orelber, 29, of East 112th St. A man, later identified as Edward Cartagena, 42, of East 104th Street, came through the crowd and slashed at Carmella with a red-handled knife.

The blade caught her in the arm and she ran, with her sister, to the heavily wire-meshed backstop back of home plate, a 30-foot by 30-foot enclosure in the center of four radiating baseball diamonds. There Cartagena caught up with the woman and stabbed her several times in the chest, neck and shoulders. There, too, the infuriated witness—players and spectators alike—caught up with the knife-wielder. The knife used was found to be a steak or paring knife with a 6-inch blade, slightly serrated.

2 POLICE CARS

Two squad cars of police were rushed to the scene to control the crowd, which had now grown to several thousand persons, after Cartagena's rescue by the mounted men. Cartagena was treated for extensive bruises and cuts at Knickerbocker Hospital, where it was first thought that his skull might have been fractured. Several hours later he had recovered sufficiently to be taken to the Transverse Road Precinct for questioning. He was booked tonight on a charge of homicide.

Police were given two addresses for Mrs. Olivo. One was at 126 East 103D Street and the other at 126 East 110th Street. Her husband, they said, had died three years ago and she had since been living with Cartagena. They parted company six months ago.

Ernest Barbosa, manager of one of the teams; Samuel Ustin, a park department employee who was the umpire at the game, and Mrs. Orelber told police the story of the tragedy as they had witnessed it. No arrests were made of anyone in the attacking crowd.

The Thrifty Have Their Opportunity

Financial authorities examining the policy of Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey in designedly forcing interest rates upward see advantages and disadvantages. As an individual, approval or disapproval depends upon the immediate gains or losses involved.

During the coming year, upward of $60,000,000,000 in national debt must be refunded at rates expected to equal those of the recent $1,000,000,000 bond issue paying 3¼ per cent. An increase of 1 per cent in the refunding would cost the American public $600,000,000, an estimated $13 for each family in the United States.

Should the higher rates be applicable to the refunding of the entire $264,000,000,000 federal debt, the cost would be high indeed. Added throughout the entire credit structure of the nation, installment buying, home mortgages and the like, the added strain could become deflationary, indeed.

Theoretically, at least, the higher interest rates will be returned to the American public though higher returns in certain types of investments—savings banks accounts, bond holdings, life insurance policies, building and loan shares, etc. The thrifty will be encouraged to save more in order to invest more, contributing to expansion of the business community.

The Treasury head reasons that low interest rates forced the government to borrow billions of dollars from commercial banks. This had the effect of inflating the currency, raised the price level by some 54 per cent and reduced the value of savings and investments in bank deposits, mortgages, bonds, life insurance policies and social security benefits—robbing the people of hard accumulated savings.

On the other hand, some big corporations must face a new kind of added cost, the rising price of capital for production, expansion, and modernization of plants. Utilities, railroads, automobile manufacturers, farm equipment makers, and thousands of other concerns that operate on borrowed capital must up prices or their stockholders will foot the bill in lowered dividends.

Whether this will tend to force such industries to cease modernization and expansion or whether the public will absorb the added costs in higher prices is still for the future.

The farmer, the home purchaser and the installment buyer will be hard hit by a tight money policy. The coupon clipper, the patient saver, will be helped. For every dollar of cost to one citizen, so the reasoning goes, a dollar of gain will go to another. In the meantime, the inflation bugaboo is beaten.

In the current issue of Business Week, a cross section of American business leaders warn against the consequences of carrying the tight money program too far. They warn that it's much easier to check inflation than deflation, whose acceleration once started is much faster. They point out, too, that a huge national debt built on inflated money will be doubly hard to retire on deflated currency.

How it will work out none can tell, but the new policy is to be given a try and the people who complained about no incentive for saving now will have their day.

It's Spring in Georgia, Say the 'Revenooers'

Deep in the Georgia hills life goes on about as usual. The friendly relationship between the "revenooers" and the hooch makers is reported as normal. And people continue to buy the white lightning, heat poison, or whatever you prefer to call it. Every once in a while the tax agents catch one or a couple of these believers in free trade, but more often than not all they get is the still and the "makings."

The other day at Tallapoosa, however, they captured what sounds like a full-sized brewery. It also sounded like too big an outfit to be run or financed by the average rugged heat maker. It had a capacity of 750 gallons, and enough modern accessories to run into sizable money. It would be interesting to find out whose money went down the creek in that operation.

The subject of bootlegging reminds us of the sheriff in a north Georgia county who captured a beautiful copper still and had it proudly on display in his office. But one night thieves broke the lock on the door and the next morning the sheriff's trophy was missing. He never did say whether a true believer in free enterprise was merely reclaiming his property or whether some ambitious mountaineer saw his chance and took it, but a few weeks later he recaptured it in another location. Needless to say, it was not put back on display.

The most daring operation of which we have heard, however, occurred in another north Georgia county. Taking advantage of the old saw that the law never sees the obvious, the operative or operatives set up shop in the basement of, yes, the courthouse. They never did figure that one out.

Oh, well, it's spring and the bootleggers and the "revenooers" are part of it. Free enterprise reigns supreme where courage dares it. Phooey on the prophets of doom! Get the fire going!

Press Is Anathema To Every Dictator

When political candidates are defeated they sometimes blame it on newspapers which opposed them. When wicked, corrupt and harmful, or merely inefficient, operations of government are exposed to public view, the directors sometimes take out their wrath in blaming the newspapers. (Never themselves.)

And, in those nations where tyrants and dictators are in control, they do something about the newspapers. They silence their right to criticize, explore, find out, reveal and expose.

William Oatis, Associated Press correspondent, has just been released from a Communist jail in Czechoslovakia, where he spent two years for violating the press laws of that state.

> Paragraph 12 of the Czech Law for the Defense of the Republic of Nov. 6, 1948, incorporated in the penal code of 1950, makes it illegal for newspapermen to publish "information regarding any enterprise, institution, installation or measure that is important for the defense of the Republic or its allies, especially regarding the strength, fighting capacity, military movements . . ." and so forth of the Czech armed forces.

That gives a dictator wide powers. He alone says what is important for the defense of the nation. Charges can easily be made of "spying," as they were against Oatis.

The same law makes it illegal for a newspaper to report on crimes involving the government unless, and until, the government allows it—and writes what is to be said.

Down in the Argentine, Dictator Peron has a law governing newspapers. Argentine Law No. 13985 on Suppression of Treason, Espionage and Sabotage, Article 6 reads:

> "All those shall be imprisoned from one month to four years who, without authorization, hand over, remit, communicate, publish or circulate economic, political, military, financial or industrial information which, without being secret or confidential, is not intended for publication or diffusion and concerning which they had obtained or been confided knowledge because of the nature of their employment, function, status or mission."

Maybe this helps explain why all those who would censor the news, or our books, don't like newspapers. It also explains why some angry public officials claim the newspapers are unfair to them and why some defeated political candidates, successful and defeated, say the same thing.

But our Constitution prescribes a free press. And a free press must have editorial opinions and must, in a sense, serve as the eyes and ears of the public by reporting what goes on in their government and institutions. If newspapers do not do this they have no reason for existence.

Is Your Name's State Your State's Name?

Vermont Connecticut Royster, editorial writer for The Wall Street Journal who won the Pulitzer prize for editorial writing, has a couple of unusual names—but not too unusual. Many people are named for states, though few are named for two at once.

Virginia is popular, the Virginia most popular with us being Virginia Mayo, ex of St. Louis. Georgia is another state for whom girl babies are often named, as was Georgia Sothern, the stripteuse.

St. Louis' own poet, Florida Watts Smith, comes to mind. Take Tennessee Williams. Or the late Texas Guinan, night-club hostess of "Hello, sucker" fame. Or the late Bull Montana, wrestler and movie star. Or "Jersey Joe" Walcott, ex-heavyweight champion of the world. Or Illinois Jacquet, a solid tenor sax man who has played with Basie.

Myles Standish, our theater reviewer, who has something of a name himself, recalls a press agent in New York named George Alabama Florida. That "George" is the surprise snapper in Mr. Florida's name. Sounds like it's going to be Georgia, and then isn't.

Days Will Bare Reds' Intentions

WASHINGTON — If Red China really wants a truce in Korea, this fact will be established in the next few days by her willingness to accept a sensible formula devised by the United Nations countries directly involved in the conflict.

The latest peace plan conforms to the basic positions already taken by both sides in previous announcements and offers. It is an ingenious compromise.

The whole plan contemplates "voluntary repatriation" but the Communists have been so confident that they could persuade the 48,000 prisoners to go back to them that it now has come down to a question of what is meant by "persuading" or by "presenting the facts" to the prisoners. The way is opened for the Communists to use a face-saving device to protect them on the propaganda front.

They can, if they like, always accuse the Allies of "coercing" and "intimidating" the prisoners if a majority don't go back. If by chance a majority does go back to Communist jurisdiction, neither Moscow nor Peiping needs to be very much concerned about the way the final statistics on the reluctant minority show up, especially since the decision will not be known until at least 90 days after the fighting has ceased. By that time such important questions as unification of Korea will be in the limelight and neither side is likely to avail itself of technicalities about the return of prisoners as an excuse to resume fighting.

Such concessions as have been made in the Allied proposals for a truce have been in the interest of testing the good faith of the Communists. If they don't want a truce, they can find plenty of things to argue about and on which to deadlock the negotiations further. But it is significant that before the latest plan was finished the U. S. Government entered into full and frank discussions with the governments of Britain and France and it may be stated authoritatively that all the Allies are in absolute agreement.

Another precaution taken here by the Department of State was to invite the members of subcommittees of the House foreign affairs committee and of the Senate foreign relations committee last week to listen to an explanation of the latest formula and to make suggestions before the final draft was presented. Most of the discussion turned on whether a unanimous vote or a majority vote should prevail in the five-nation commission. Since Poland and Czechoslovakia will vote the way the Communists want them to vote and since Sweden and Switzerland will decide objectively, the vote in many cases could be a tie and then India's representative would have to cast the deciding ballot.

Elusive Phantom Haunts the Farm

There's a paradoxical phantom adrift across the cultivated acres of Georgia's rural areas. It's difficult to put one's finger on this thing, and typewriter keys, thoroughly perplexed, are left flapping in the breeze.

See what you make of it:

The average value of Georgia's farms, lands and buildings was discovered in 1950 to be $5,336, and this figure was quite a jump from the $2,896 average value of 1945, and a tremendous leap from the average value of $1,715 in 1935. Hmm! Farm values are really going up, one would say. The average value per acre reflects this upward trend even more graphically. The acre value was $43.28 in 1950, as opposed to $16.99 in 1935. Farmers are gaining in others ways, too. In 1950 they owned 62,865 trucks. Ten years earlier they owned only 21,693; and 60,269 tractors, compared to 9,327 10 years previous; 100,525 automobiles rolling where only 77,040 rolled a decade before.

The farmers had a lot of other conveniences, too. More than 150,000 of Georgia's approximate 200,000 farms had electricity in the year 1950. A mere 50,000 had seen the light 10 years before. Telephones were up from 8,500 to 18,000. A ringing advance.

Along with all this, farm prices were up considerably in the 1935-40-1950 era. (Today, however, price is one thing that's "down on the farm.")

The advances presented above are one side of the picture. Here's the other, based on 1950 findings:

67,000 of the state's 200,000 farms are less than 50 acres in size; 52,424 farms have no tractors, horses or mules; 105,755 farms sold less than $1,000 worth of farm products; 139,755 farms used family labor only; 23 per cent of rented farmland, plus buildings, was valued at less than $1,000.

This phantom of the farms, this elusive paradox, was lifted from the pages of the 1950 Agriculture Census. They are some factors which would explain a portion of the puzzler. Not all of the 200,000 farms in Georgia are commercial farms. Some are merely homeland with owners and residents working in the city.

Poultry farms, for instance, would need few tractors, horses and mules, and that might account for a portion of that strange figure of 52,424 muleless, horseless, tractorless farms. But the census people said there were 122,397 commercial farms in the state, as compared with the total 200,000 farms. Now how does that jibe with the fact 139,755 farms used family labor only and 105,502 farms sold less than $1,000 in produce?

The indication would appear to be looming that there is a considerable number of marginal farm units in this state. But what about all those automobiles, tractors, trucks and electric lights?

If anyone knows the answer, tell me. I'm just a city slicker myself.

Invites All To Travel Roswell Road And Enjoy the Finest Rural Scenery

Alpharetta—The detour signs and barriers on Roswell Road have been removed and traffic is permitted to flow over the newly improved section from the Chattahoochee River to Sandy Springs.

As one resident of north Fulton who has traveled over Roswell Road every working day for the past 17 years, it is now a great pleasure to travel this newly surfaced and straightened road. Because of the many curves and roughness of this road, we in north Fulton heretofore have been almost ashamed to invite our friends out to see us.

Now that the road is completed, we would like to invite everyone to travel out Roswell Road to north Fulton County.

At this time of the year this section is especially beautiful, so come out and help us enjoy the pleasures of an improved road and the beautiful scenery of a rural section.

Tidelands Oil Reminds Him Of the Teapot Dome Affair

Athens—The Tidelands Oil Bill finally did pass. I have a faint remembrance of another oil deal which occurred about 25 years ago. As I recall, this was the Teapot Dome deal. A Mr. Fall and a Mr. Sinclair were sent to prison because of this deal. They were very foolish. They should have had a law passed which would have made the whole thing legal.

However, the personnel of the Senate at that time may have been somewhat different. Probably it was more difficult to get a law of that nature passed then. That may have been the reason.

Maybe Bob Taft Will Live To Mine Coal for John L.

Decatur—Is there any wonder why the Iron Curtain has changed a bit? Why should they care if the war ceases or not? Using Taft's brain here will answer their purpose much better.

From all evidence it appears that if any brains at all are being used these days it must be behind a curtain; there are no outside results of it.

Too, it seems that the Iron Curtain folks have had all the recent good luck; for instance, old Joe is gone, while we have Bob on our hands.

Perhaps the good Lord wants him to live long enough to mine coal for old John L.

Says Ballot Listing Turned Trick in Recent Primary

Atlanta—The recent primary was the greatest fraud forced on the citizens of this city in my memory. Let me illustrate.

There were some 30-odd councilmen listed across the voting machine in proper horizontal order. Voters selected their choice in this (horizontal) order. Now, the Board of Education and City Executive Committee were listed in a vertical order. By the time the average voter had selected his councilmen, mayor, etc., and reached the Board of Education, his mind was "trained" to select the candidate of his choice in the top position.

The law of averages meant that those listed in position No. 1 would win. Election returns showed nine candidates on top won . . . and candidates on the bottom were defeated!

And horizontal listing, with an abrupt break to a vertical listing did the trick!

Trygve Lie's UN Pension Isn't Justified, He Claims

Atlanta—I was astounded to read recently that Trygvie Lie received $20,000 severance pay and pension of $10,000 for life for seven years' service as secretary-general of the United Nations. This carries the present phobia for security a mite too far, considering the fact that I served 25 years for a pension on which I cannot exist.

Since America built the palace that houses UN and, like Korean casualties, provides majority of the money to operate it, it seems highly unjust to tax my pittance to help support such an outrageous pension.

It was this same Lie who fired Abraham Nagel, proofreader in the UN, for communistic affiliation and then put him on special leave from his job until May, when he would reach the retirement age of 60. (Salary, $6,000 after taxes.) Since a man is a traitor to his country who believes in the Communist doctrine of the overthrow of America by force, we have reached a new low in moronic sympathy to pension such a man.

For congressmen looking for a place to cut expenses, the UN is a better place than the Air Force! I'm 61, but would be willing to take the job of secretary-general to UN and listen to Vishinsky debate and rave for seven years in order to get $10,000 a year pension for life.

McCarthy, Dubinsky Tactics Are Called Exact Opposites

Mt. Vernon, N. Y.—A national magazine recently published an article by David Dubinsky, head of the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union, explaining how his union, which nearly fell under Communist control, was rescued by him and his associates, chiefly by making use of ex-Communists.

The union Dubinsky heads is a most successful and progressive union. He fought the Communists, not by reaction, but by liberal policies and by using ex-Communists. This method, its success proved under fire, is the exact opposite of that of Senator McCarthy, who seeks to smear ex-Communists, except those who fall on their knees to worship him.

McCarthy tried to smear Mr. Wechsler, editor of the New York Post, simply because he was against McCarthy's unwise methods of fighting communism and despite Wechsler's record of supporting anti-Communist moves. This method of attacking and smearing ex-Communists used by McCarthy is the opposite of the successful policy of Dubinsky and the I.L.G.W.U. of using services of ex-Communists in effective attacks on the influence of Communists.

Continuing Progress Chosen by Atlantans

The city of Atlanta has given a vote of confidence to Mayor William B. Hartsfield by re-electing him to a fifth term. Mayor Hartsfield, who has already served 16 years, defeated his opponent, Charlie Brown, by more than 7,000 votes.

While we are not as familiar with the issues and the personalities of the two candidates as Atlantans, it seems to us that under Hartsfield the capital city of Georgia has made great progress. These strides have been accelerated by prosperous times, it is true, but for Atlanta to gain and hold its place as the business hub of the Southeast it was necessary that intelligent and visionary planning emerge from City Hall.

How much of the credit Atlanta's highly successful Plan of Improvement and expressway system must go to Mayor Hartsfield we cannot say, but it is obvious that a mayor not in sympathy with such progress could have put a serious obstacle in the path of the plan's proponents.

Mr. Hartsfield apparently long ago caught a vision of the great metropolitan city Atlanta is today and by logical persuasion swept the community along on the path of progress. The mayor has retained the confidence of his people despite the smear attacks of the Talmadgeites in the State Capitol and despite the inevitable disgruntled criticisms of those who prefer the status quo to improvement and expansion.

Would that other Southern cities could catch the spark of vision and imagination in dealing with municipal problems from Bill Hartsfield. Atlanta may well be proud of him.

Holy Ground Is God-Led Ground

"Put off thy shoes from off thy feet, for the place whereon thou standest is holy ground" (Exodus 3:5).

There are some spots which we have always considered to be holy ground. None of us kneels at the altar of the church without feeling deeply and movingly that we share a sacred spot and that we are in the presence of God. At the altar our lips are hushed except for prayer and our minds are quieted except for godly thoughts.

But the text tells of holy ground in a far less likely spot. Moses was tending the sheep of his father-in-law in the desert. He had exiled himself from his brethren and had fled from the land of the Pharaoh. He was isolated from man, yet in the vast wilderness he found God.

In Sunday school long ago you, perhaps, learned the details of this story. In the flame of a bush which was not consumed, God appeared to Moses. At that moment Moses was commissioned by God to lead the Children of Israel from the land of bondage to the land of promise.

Moses, of course, had not shut his ears to the voice of God, and when God spoke he listened. Reverently and humbly Moses, discerning the presence of God, removes his shoes and worships. That desert spot was holy ground, for God was there. That hour became to the awakened and alert soul of Moses a turning point. It was also an hour which changed the course of history.

Imagine a desert pasture as holy ground! Had Moses thought, as we sometimes think, that God is found only in the hallowed quiet of a building of worship, his life would have continued without a God-given purpose. The experience of Moses is not without meaning for each of us.

What do you consider to be holy ground? The Christian never walks on any ground which is not holy, for he thinks of all life as God-led and always he is companioned by God's presence. This awareness makes every path a holy way, every task a sacred chore. Have you ever thought of all life as a sacrament?

One cannot compartmentalize into a portion lived with God and another portion lived apart from God. The Lord of the Sabbath is the Lord of the weekday. The God of the church is the God also of the shop or kitchen or classroom. If a man feels God's presence at the altar of the church, he ought also to feel Divine companionship in his place of business, his place of recreation, his home.

When a youth asks me whether there is a difference between Christian and non-Christian activity, my suggestion is that any activity is Christian which we may share with God and any activity non-Christian which we wish to share without God. When a person dedicates his talent, his effort and his purposes to God, all life is holy and whatever place he works or plays or rests is holy ground.

Court Will Test Social Security

NEW YORK—Resisting the romantic temptation to glamorize their fight because they are women, I call attention to the importance and dignity of rebellious refusals by courageous citizens to pay the social security tax.

Two cases are now before the federal courts. A group of housewives in Marshall, Texas, popularly known as the Marshall Girls, have a case on appeal scheduled to be argued in the Circuit Court in New Orleans Tuesday.

Miss Vivien Kellems, Stonington, Conn., political tempest and redoubtable expert on federal taxes and our Constitution, promised the Marshall Girls, with whom she has made common cause, to fly to New Orleans to lend aid and comfort, and doubtless to make propaganda.

Mrs. Mary Cain, Summit, Miss., publisher of a brisk weekly paper called The Sun, is joining the group. She has refused to pay social security as a self-employed person and has done all she could to get the government to put her in jail.

Beautiful Corinne Griffith, known to many as a movie star, has been requested to join the party. Miss Griffith, wife of George Marshall, who runs the Washington professional football club, has been campaigning around the country for repeal of the income tax amendment and revival of the integrity of the states and their duty to guard citizens against unconstitutional oppressions by Federal Government.

Corinne makes speeches for repeal of the 16th Amendment and substitution of another offered by Congressman Fred Coudert, of New York, limiting federal income tax to periods of "grave national emergency proclaimed by the President and concurred in by a concurrent resolution of the two houses" for a strictly limited time. Revenues raised under this amendment would be used "solely for the reduction of the public debt and payment of interest" thereon.

All the girls are persistent, nagging harried government accountants, marshals and lawyers with sweetly logical and irrefutable contentions and there is a possibility they will win on one or all fronts and knock out the whole parasitic monster of the social security fraud with ominous consequences to the Treasury.

Miss Griffith's case is parallel to the others. She is concentrating on the income tax as a whole. Social security is part of the income tax and yet, in some incoherent government contentions, is held to be no tax at all, but a purchase of "security" by the individual "client."

The issue is whether Congress can order citizens of sovereign states to filch money from unwilling victims, and force these employers to donate money toward a highly improbable pension to such workers, under penalty of fine or jail.

Julius Wins Again

Julius Boros will get his medal this week, the one that says "I beat Bisher." But it was a terrif wrestle and the champ will never know how close he came to crushing defeat.

I hadn't given any serious consideration to a duel with the dark Hungarian who won the National Open at Dallas last year. Then I found myself up in North Carolina in his own state on a week-end journey and it seemed the least I could do was accept the fellow's challenge. Not being a regular performer around the courses, I am a golfer without a registered handicap. The only handicap I got is my game. It's a discouraging disadvantage, but I do the best I can under the circumstances. The scene of the battle was the Carmel Club in Charlotte. The day was bright and clear. Pretty soon it became bright, clear and hot, hotter than a two-dollar pistol. This was a break for Boros. He'd won the Open in sweltering Texas weather. It was his kind of day.

Bisher

It was necessary to get myself rated for the performance, and a lady at the starter's table suggested honesty. On National Golf Day, they use a handicapping system invented by a fellow named Calloway. You tell them what you usually shoot and they tell you how to work out your handicap. Only trouble is, a guy like me never knows what to say. One day he's liable to come in with 120, and the next he might come in 90, with the breaks.

"Well, why don't you just pick a number?" the lady said. She was covering the front for the USO.

So I picked out what looked like a nifty little number and went out with it. There was where I made my biggest mistake. I didn't bother to read the fine print that said how the thing worked. Later, when I got in I found out that my handicap was arrived at by adding up my three worst holes. I had contented myself with a couple of eights and a seven. With any sort of luck at all I could have blown to a 14 and Boros wouldn't have had a chance.

—Donald Ross and His Sand Traps

My debut on the first tee was impressive. With a fair-sized audience of two, I went off with one of those rocket shots down the middle. I must have looked extremely formidable, for one of the USO ladies observed:

"Julius better be hot today."

My good fortune began to cease rather abruptly. I dribbled my second shot into a strategically located sand trap. This course was designed by the late Donald Ross, and I don't see how any man can rest in peace with as many traps as he left behind him.

The day grew hotter and my game remained its consistently inconsistent self. There was the sixth hole, for instance. This is a 415-yard affair with a fairway as broad as the English Channel. My tee shot was a screaming drive into a clump of bushes on the left. I played a five-iron across the fairway into a gulley on the right. The shot traveled about 150 yards, horizontally, but I wasn't gaining on the hole. I came out cleverly this time with a deft kick of the right foot while the caddy, a large colored gent named Charlie, stood gasping for breath in the shade of a friendly oak, gazing discreetly in another direction.

He applauded my effort and handed me a seven iron, with which I promptly delivered the ball back into the woods off to the right of the green. When I finally caught up with the hole and hemmed the ball in the cup, Charlie heaved a mighty sigh, shook his kinky head and said: "Dey was a time I didn't think we was gonna make it."

—You'll Be Back Again and Again

The thermometer was hanging around 95 when we finally staggered in from the front nine. Charlie cooled his burning insides with a couple of slugs of pop, stood outside hopefully waiting for the word that I'd surrendered, or that Boros had.

The second nine was more of the same, except the shots you were hitting the first round you missed this time and the shots you missed the first round you hit this time. That's part of the strategy of this devilish game. Each and every ordinary shooter lives on a constant expectation that some day he'll put all those shots together and he'll walk into the clubhouse and announce without any show of emotion that he had a 72.

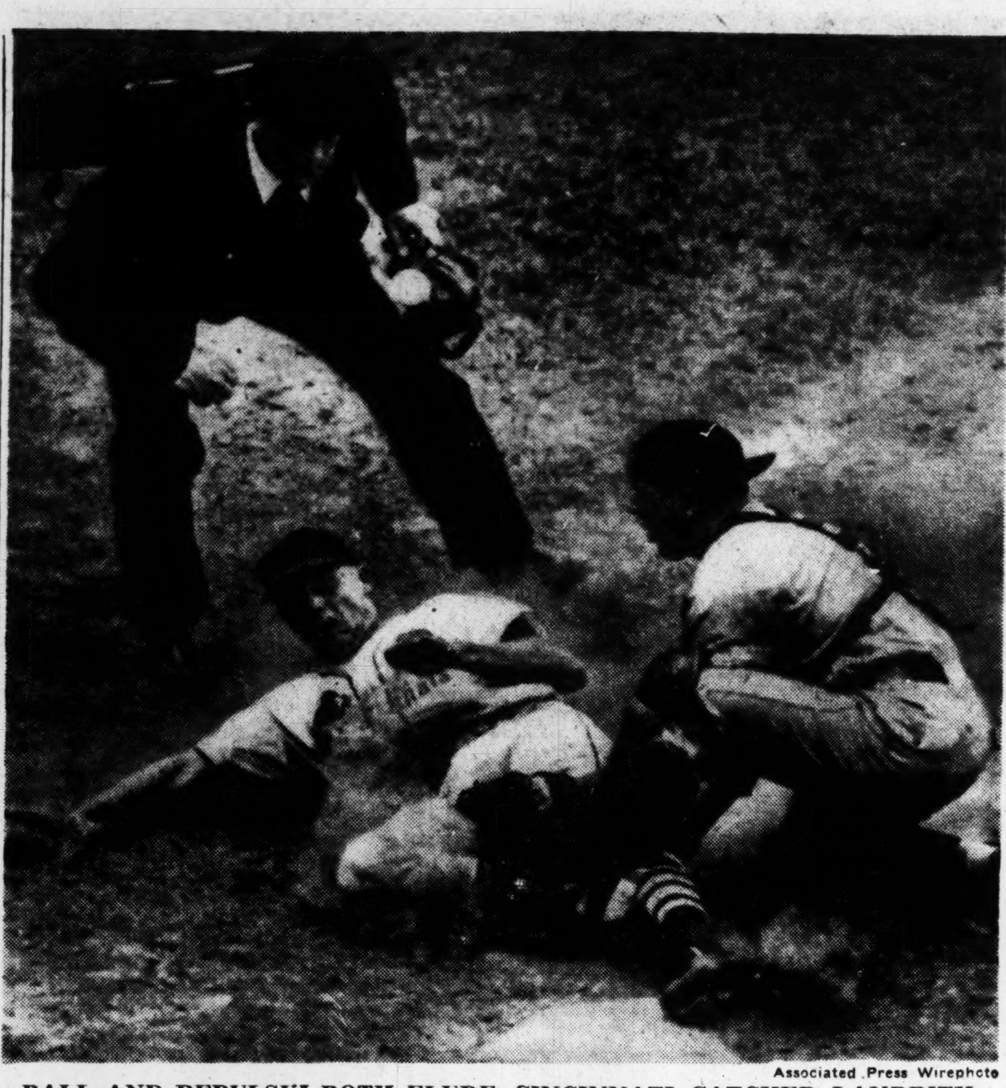

Then he'll want a 70, and if he gets it he'll be able to fuss that if it hadn't been for a couple of stubborn putts he'd have had a 68. And pretty soon he'll be back up in the 80's where he belongs. But the tantalizing goes on.

A fellow from Wisconsin joined us for the second nine. He'd managed to sneak away from the house while his wife answered the telephone.

"She wanted me to work in the garden," he said, swabbing his red, beaded brow. "Can you imagine—working in the garden on a day like this?"

By the time the second tour was about finished it was like shooting craps in a boiler room. The sun was boiling down. The three players had stumbled among the underbrush and broom sedge looking for lost balls. Their tempers were short, and old Charlie was so hot he even refused to give ground to a snake he came across.

The bookkeepers were waiting inside the clubhouse to remodel the scores and by a series of arithmetical operations it was determined that I had not shot a 99 at all, but a 76. This sounded quite respectable. I was impressed. I hadn't won any medals. Julius and his 70 were safe. But the course wasn't. I'd be back again and again, looking for the day when I'd put all those shots together.

Rout Curt Simmons To Hand Phils Fourth Straight Loss

PHILADELPHIA, May 24—(AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers batted 16 men and scored 12 of them in the eighth inning today to tag the fading Philadelphia Phillies with their fourth straight loss, 16-2.

Thirteen Dodgers walked or hit before an out was made in the horrendous frame.

Seven hits, including bases-loaded triples by Pee Wee Reese and Carl Furillo, plus six walks by frustrated Phils' pitchers, produced the scoring.

The half-inning took 42 minutes to play.

It was no record for single-inning scoring by one team. The Dodgers set the modern record last year when they tallied 15 times against the Cincinnati Reds on May 21, to win 19-1. The all-time record is 18 runs scored by the Chicago Cubs in 1883.

Up until the eighth, it was another nip-and-tuck struggle between the two contenders for the National League lead. Brooklyn, which last night beat Phillies' ace, Robin Roberts, 2-0, was having troubles with Curt Simmons, the lefty ace of the Phils, leading 3-2 as the eighth started.

Russ Meyer, former Phil, started for the Dodgers but was bounced by umpire Augie Donatelli in the fourth inning for protesting on a pitch call and throwing the resin bag at the pitchers' mound sky-high.

HERE'S THE HORRIBLE STORY OF BROOKS' 12-RUN INNING

PHILADELPHIA, May 24—(AP)—Here's how the Brooklyn Dodgers scored their 12 runs in the eighth inning of their 16-2 victory over Philadelphia Sunday:

Hodges walked. Cox singled to center, Hodges taking third. Snider doubled down the first-base line, scoring Hodges, and Cox going to third. Furillo was purposely walked, filling the bases. Erskine popped a single into short center, scoring Cox, and the bases remained filled. Miller relieved Simmons. Gilliam walked, scoring Snider, the bases remained filled. Reese tripled to left-center, scoring Furillo, Erskine and Gilliam. Hanson replaced Miller. Robinson singled to center, scoring Reese. Campanella walked. Hodges singled to center, scoring Robinson, Campanella stopping at second. Stuffel relieved Hanson. Cox walked. Snider also walked, filling the bases.

Burgess was removed from the game by Umpire Donatelli for protesting a called ball and Manager O'Neill was automatically removed from the game for protesting over the same call. The count was ball two on Furillo, when Peterson relieved Stuffel. Furillo tripled over Ashburn's head in deep center, scoring Hodges, Cox and Snider. Erskine struck out. Gilliam grounded to Jones, who threw out Furillo at the plate, Jones to Lopata. Reese struck out. Twelve runs, seven hits, no errors, one left.

Travs Win Marathon on Bunt; Brittin Takes Shorty, 4-1

By JESSE OUTLAR
Constitution Sports Writer

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 24—Darkness halted the second game Sunday after five innings with Atlanta a 4-1 winner, but 3,232 Traveler field fans couldn't squawk about being shortchanged, for they had already seen Little Rock take a 4-3 victory in 16 thrill-packed innings.

The Travelers had to labor 3:29 for their triumph, while the Crackers wrapped up the second one in 1:06.

Certainly, no one could accuse the Travelers of stalling, though darkness was closing in fast during the final inning. And Dutch McCall, who's usually wild as a March hare, helped Atlanta by retiring seven straight men.

As a result of the win, achieved on Jack Brittin's abbreviated four-hitter, the Crackers gained a 2-2 split in the series.

Hard-luck Leo Cristante was the loser in the marathon contest, his third setback in overtime this year.

Cristante, who took over for Art Fowler with none out in the eighth, staged a scoreless duel with Ed March until the 16th.

The Travelers then stamped Leo with his fifth loss compared to one success. The end came on a perfectly executed squeeze bunt by Johnny Grice, scoring fleet Chick King from third.

King already was across with the winning run before Cristante picked up Grice's bunt directly in front of the plate. So the disgusted Cracker hurler sailed the ball over the grandstand. There was no need for a play at first, since only one was out.

March, who replaced starter Jim Bunning in the eighth, limited Atlanta to three singles in posting nine scoreless innings.

He wrote off the last 14 Crackers in order to record his second victory. He has lost four. Ironically, March, in his last appearance, was mauled for eight runs in one inning by Birmingham.

The Crackers thought they had won the lid-lifter in the ninth when Pete Whisenant, batting for Billy Smith, smashed one far over the left-field fence.

However, plate umpire Jack Kernan ruled it a foul, setting off a furious wrangle. Whisenant had to be restrained from striking the umpire and, of course, got the heave-ho.

When order was restored, March and Christante continued their 3-3 argument.

The Crackers had two real chances to settle the issue, but missed. In the 10th, an error by George Bullard gave Bob Mainzer life and, with one out, Manager Gene Mauch was purposely passed. But neither Junior Wooten nor Tanner could muster a scoring lick.

Mauch's men couldn't do anything about a bases-loaded situation in the 11th. Snovic's single and two intentional walks after two were out provided the opportunity. But Christante, afforded a shot to win his own game, skied to right.

Little Rock almost closed it out in the 10th when, with one out, Carl Linhart laced a steaming drive into right. It would have gone for a triple, but the ball rolled under the fence for an automatic double. Dave Jaska then got a lucky hit when Mauch, playing first, stumbled while attempting to catch his pop.

Linhart took third on Ralph Atkins' fly to center, but Christante whiffed Bullard to put down the threat.

Obviously weary when the 16th rolled around, Christante was smacked for a lead double by King, a terrific wallop off the left-field scoreboard. R. C. Otey was purposely walked and Danny Ryan sacrificed with only one out, Mauch elected to have March walked and Grice then dumped his scoring bunt.

Roy Jarvis had kept Fowler in the running with two homers. His second round-tripper in the seventh snarled the score 3-3.

Little Rock took the lead in the first when Grice singled, moved around on a balk and infield hit, and scored as Jaska hit into a double play.

Mainzer and Mauch wrapped singles around Fowler's sacrifice for a run in the third and Jarvis got his first homer in the fourth.

The Travelers bounced back

BIG CLAYTON HEAFNER CHIPS TO PIN
Gets His Par But Loses His Lead in Colonial Invitation

Hogan's Hot 67 Bags $5,000 at Fort Worth

It's a Breeze by Five Strokes; Ford, Middlecoff Runners-Up

FORT WORTH, May 24—(UP)—Ben Hogan, golf's little automaton, turned on the heat in the stretch Sunday, produced a par-cracking 67 in the final round and won the Colonial National Invitation tournament with a 72 hole total of 282.

Hogan, who had won two of the three previous tournaments he entered this season—the Masters and Pan-American—started the day tied with Clayton Heafner of Charlotte, N. C., and Jerry Barber of La Canada, Calif.

But while his challengers faded, the bronzed son of a blacksmith gave a loud warning with a birdie-four on the first hole and steadily pulled away to a five-stroke margin and $5,000 top money.

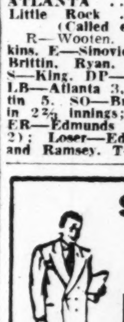

Doug Ford, of Harrison, N. Y., and Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, Tenn., shared second place and $5,000 with seven-over-par 287s.

Ford had a beautiful chance to take the runner-up spot alone, but bogies on No. 16 and No. 17—when he missed par putts of less than four feet—ruined his chance.

Anxious Field Eyes Harvie's British Crown

HOYLAKE, England, May 24. (AP)—Shooting starts here Monday for the 58th British amateur golf championship and already English golf writers are trying to pick which American will win the big silver cup.

Americans have monopolized the glory in this glamor event by winning five out of seven postwar championships. But this year English writers have overlooked a highly respectable group of local golfers.

Two of the Americans—big in size, aim and hitting power—lead the way Monday when the first half of the 244-player field opens the tournament.

Bill Campbell of Huntington, W. Va., and Jimmy McHale of Philadelphia, shoot what golfers themselves call their "career" round. To have any future in this tournament, Campbell must whip James Malcolm Peel and McHale must eliminate Peter K. Heginbotham of Miramar, New Zealand.

Other top-flight Americans—including defending champion Harvie Ward of Atlanta and Frank Stranahan of Toledo—begin play Tuesday.

Britain has at least four men capable of reaching the finals with any sort of luck. Each of them—John Langley and Jerald Micklem of England, Joe Carr of Ireland, David Blair of Scotland — knows Hoylake's 7,078 yards and how to play the sea winds that sweep hard across the dunes par 36-37—73 layout.

The home country contingent of nearby Liverpool, a Hoylake member, had not "forgotten" to enter. Ronnie White, a Walker Cup selection, has a habit of missing these American-studded events.

Because of the confusing draw there is only one first-round match Monday—between two little-known Englishmen. The remainder of the field plays Monday in the second round. Tuesday afternoon part of the third round also will be played.

Thirteen scratches, including five Americans, whacked the field to 244, about 20 fewer than the record number last year.

Crooner Bing Crosby of Hollywood and Chauncey Needham of San Francisco withdrew two weeks ago. Another San Franciscan, Eddie Lowery, also decided not to play. Vincent Fitzgerald of Garden City, N. Y., and Joe McBride of Ridgewood, N. J., dropped out Saturday. No reason was given by the Royal and Ancient, the conductor of this tournament.

Workers gave Hoylake's rolling greens a final shave and the fairways got a close trim Sunday but they left the rough high and mean.

John Sain Slings and Slugs Yankees Over Red Sox, 8-4

Bats in Four Runs, Pitches Eight-Hitter Before 45,830

NEW YORK, May 24—(AP)—Johnny Sain knocked in four runs and set down the Boston Red Sox with eight hits Sunday in winning his fourth game for the New York Yankees, 8-4, before a crowd of 45,830 fans.

Sain saved himself after giving up three runs in the first inning. His double with the bases loaded tied the score in the second. Phil Rizzuto's single scored the veteran pitcher with the run that put the Yanks ahead to stay.

The 34-year-old curveball artist blanked the Red Sox from the first until Gene Stephens hit his first major league home run with two out and nobody on in the eighth inning. Stephens had entered the game a half-inning earlier as a replacement for Hoot Evers.

The victory was New York's seventh in eight starts against the youthful Red Sox this season.

Dancer Great? Didn't Prove It In Preakness

Belmont May Give Answer June 13; Win Ove Jamie K. Too Close

BALTIMORE, May 24—(AP)—This Native Dancer can drive the "experts" nutty, and the question whether he is a truly great horse after his spine tingling Preakness victory won't be decided until the Belmont Stakes next month—and perhaps later.

Alfred Vanderbilt's big grey colt, odds-on favorite in the Kentucky Derby only to be defeated by a head by Dark Star, was the super duper attraction Saturday at historic Pimlico.

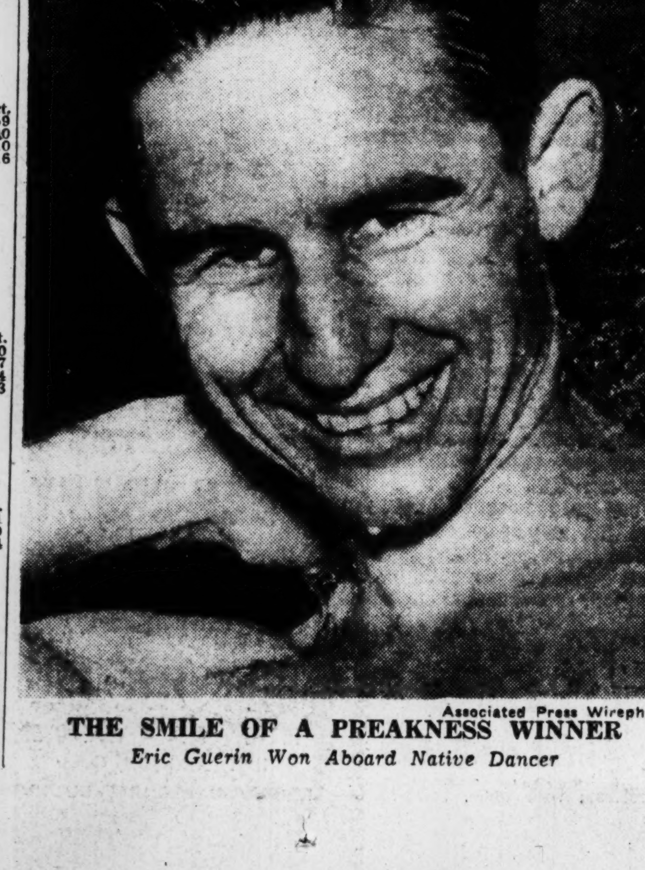

Most everyone thought he'd win the 77th running of the mile-and-three-sixteenths classic, but the margin of victory—a neck—over the Spring Hill Stable's Jamie K. left a lot of people uncertain as to the grey's future title claims.

The $100,000-added Belmont Stakes, finale of the Derby-Preakness-Belmont triple crown for sophomores, will be staged June 13 at Belmont Park over the gruelling mile-and-one-half route.

Dark Star, from Harry Guggenheim's Cain Hoy Stable, shot out in front in the Preakness as he did in the Derby. But he couldn't run on the front end all the way and take the big prize as he did three weeks ago in Louisville.

Jockey Eris Guerin rated the grey Dancer a few lengths off the pace, made his first move going into the far turn where Dark Star and Ben Whitaker's Tahitian King began to give up the battle, then charged home to victory.

Eddie Arcaro, who has won four Preaknesses, was aboard Jamie K., a colt who has never distinguished himself in such company. But he rated a cheer or two for his followers and owner Jim Norris of the International Boxing Club.

Bulldogs Get Rollins In Charlotte Opener

Maroons, Blue Devils Paired In NCAA Meet Tuesday Week

By EDWIN POPE

Southeastern Conference champion Georgia will play independent Rollins College in the opener of the NCAA District 3 baseball tournament at Charlotte Tuesday week.

Rollins was named Sunday as the fourth team in the tourney. Coach Joe Justice's Tars will meet Coach Jim Whatley's Bulldogs at 6:45 p. m., June 2.

SEC runner-up Mississippi State and Southern Conference titlist Duke play that night at 8:45.

Team selections and pairings for the double-elimination tournament were announced by Walter Rabb of North Carolina. Rabb headed a four-man committee that met in Charlotte with Bob Allen, tournament chairman.

Tourney champion moves into the College World Series at Omaha June 11-16.

In the Charlotte meet, three games will be played Wednesday, June 3, at 1:30, 6:45 and 8:45 p. m. Two teams will be eliminated that day and the two survivors play Thursday at 7 p. m. If a second game is needed, a double-header will be played that night.

Georgia has the best record of any entry. The Bulldogs won 23 and lost 5, compared with Rollins' 22-7, Mississippi State's 14-5 and Duke's 17-7.

Georgia downed State two straight in the SEC playoff, 3-1 and 1-0.

Brevity of the tournament places a premium on pitching depth.

Whatley is almost certain to open with Bulldog righthanders Jack Roberts (8-2) and Allen Parrish (7-1). If they win, it's up to lefty Marv Satterfield (2-0) and righthander Doug Foster (5-2) to carry on.

Lookouts To Play Feds on June 6 In Exhibition Tilt

Chattanooga's Lookouts will play an exhibition with the Federal penitentiary Saturday, June 6.

Original plans had the Crackers opposing Chattanooga, but a Southern Association ruling made the match impossible. Last year the Feds defeated the Crackers in an exhibition.

Garson Gains Semifinals

Dan Garson beat Elliott Haas, 6 and 4, to gain the semifinals in Standard Town and Country Club's annual golf championship Sunday afternoon.

Lester Friedman beat J. J. Sarno, 3 and 2; Herschel Hurwitz downed L. L. Rosenberg, 4 and 3, and Keith Steiner whipped Joe Guzy, 4 and 3, in other championship flight matches.

Other results:

FIRST FLIGHT—S. A. Mallen beat I. Greenbaum, 4 and 3; Sam Gillett beat Sol Levin, 2 and 1; H. Jacobson beat Dr. Lipman, 3 and 1; W. Widmann beat Joe May, 2 and 1; B. Howard beat L. G. Sherman, 3 and 2; Aaron Thal beat L. Greenbaum, 2 and 1, and Elliott Goldstein beat C. E. Elasa, 3 and 2.

SECOND FLIGHT—David Lang beat Dan Paradies, 3 and 2; S. A. Blum beat H. J. Rosenberg, 5 and 4; C. F. Feuer beat J. L. Fraser, 4 and 3, and Lee Ross beat Mendel Segal, 3 and 2.

Miceli To Test Saxton; Charles Seeks Ninth

NEW YORK, May 24—(AP)—Ezzard Charles, determined to keep in top shape in case a title bid comes his way, seeks his ninth straight victory Tuesday night at Milwaukee when he faces young Larry Watson of Omaha.

The former heavyweight champion is a prohibitive favorite to keep his streak alive in the ten-rounder. Although Watson upset Danny Nardico, a ranking light heavyweight in Milwaukee a month ago, he doesn't rate with the Cincinnati slasher.

Milwaukee's fight won't be telecast but telefans will get their usual quota of network shows.

On Wednesday night, undefeated Johnny Saxton and jumping Joe Miceli, a pair of high-ranking welterweights from New York, collide in a return ten-rounder at the Detroit Olympia.

The Friday night radio-TV coast to coaster matches Lulu Perez, sensational 20-year-old New York featherweight, and veteran Glen Flanagan of St. Paul, in a top ten-rounder at New York's Madison Square Garden.

Perez' first Garden main event will be broadcast (ABC) and telecast (NBC) starting at 9 p. m., EST.

The third coast-to-coast TV boxing show of the week on Saturday will come from Newark's Laurel Garden where middleweights Hurley Sanders of Newark and Joey Giardello of Philadelphia will clash in a ten-rounder. ABC will TV this one starting at 8 p. m., EST.

Monday night, young Randy Sandy of New York will face rugged Tuzo (Kid) Portuguez of Costa Rica in a middleweight ten at Brooklyn's Eastern Parkway Arena.

Seixas Routs Swedish Ace

PARIS, May 24—(UP)—Favored Maureen (Little Mo) Connolly of San Diego, Calif., advanced with three other United States stars Sunday into the quarter-final round of the women's singles in the International Tennis Tournament of France.

Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, meanwhile, reached the quarter-finals of the men's play when he defeated Sven Davidsson of Sweden, 6-1, 6-1, 6-1. The second-ranking American had no trouble overcoming the erratic Swede, who played some of his worst tennis and was two sets down in fewer than 35 minutes.

Miss Connolly, playing in the center court before a crowd of about 5,000, easily disposed of Mrs. Rymonde Jones-Weber of France, 6-3, 6-1.

Doris Hart of Coral Gables, Fla., Shirley Fry of Akron, Ohio, and Mrs. Dorothy Head-Knode of Alameda, Calif., also advanced into the quarter-finals.

Harshman Homers, Wins Eighth in Row

Hurler's Grand Slam Blast Gains Vols Split With Pels

By BILL FERGUSON
United Press Sports Writer

Jack Harshman, Nashville's undefeated pitching ace, turned Southern Association history back two years Sunday as he unloaded a grand-slam homer that sparked the Vols to a 9-6 nightcap victory over New Orleans.

The Pelicans claimed the opener, 8-4, behind Lenny Yochim, but in the second-go Harshman took charge.

It was the eighth straight victory for the lanky left-hander, but what Sulphur Dell fans enjoyed most was the pay-off homer over the right field screen. It brought back some old memories.

In 1951 the converted first baseman led the Southern Association with 47 homers, and a good majority of those long hits soared over the "chicken wire" in right field.

Although Harshman gave up nine hits during the seven-inning game, the Vols backed him up with a 10-hit attack on two Pelican hurlers.

Yochim kept the Vols to a minimum of damage on eight hits in the opener while the Pels made the most out of 11 bingles, including a homer by Al Grunewald.

At Memphis, the loop-leading Birmingham Barons took off with an 8-5 win over the second-place Chicks, but Luke Appling's boys came back in the second go, 2-1.

Tommy O'Brien hit two homers and big Gus Triandos added another as the Barons used 12 bingles to take the opener. However, Tommy Fine quieted Barons in the second game with four well-scattered blows.

Mobile and Chattanooga also split with Gerry Lane hurling the Lookouts to a 4-2 win in the second game. Mobile had grabbed the first game, 9-4, by nicking four Lookout hurlers for 10 hits.

Trust In Your Future

THROUGH ALL ages of mankind there has been an avid and gnawing curiosity about the future. Many methods of foretelling it have been devised, most of them fallacious.

And there is little we as individuals can do towards vouchsafing the future living as we do in a rapidly changing world. There is, however, something that each of us can do to protect our families in emergencies. That is to plan for them through trust funds.

Property and money always need management. You, the breadwinner, supply the management now. Who will do so when you are gone? Your property will become your estate, and must be managed by someone during the settlement of your estate and thereafter. A trust fund set up by your lawyer with the First National Bank will safeguard what you already own, settle your estate and manage property you leave for the benefit of others.

Or, you and your lawyer may set up a living trust operative during your lifetime as a source of income payable to yourself or others—a daughter for her college education, a son for his own business later on, a mother for her old age.

Again, there was a time when trust funds were associated only with people of wealth. Today, they can be set up by people of modest means as well. They are flexible, useful and planned to cover many different situations.

To learn more about what trust to include in your future, why don't you and your lawyer see The Man With a Plan at the First National Bank. He is a specialist who can help you. He has experience and knowledge and can work out a plan of action to suit your future.

Fulton and Russell To Resume Playoff

Wildcats Can Finish Series With Second Win Monday

Fulton High and Russell will meet Monday afternoon in the second game of their Class AA baseball playoff at Glenn Field.

Monday's game could wrap up this half of the championship for Coach Larry Dodd's Russell team and throw them into a three-game state championship series with the winner of the Richmond Academy-Lanier playoffs.

Bill Chonko, coach of the Fulton team who suffered a 10-2 loss in the first game with Russell last week, has nominated Charley Wright to throw the 'must' game Monday.

Coach Dodd will start either Sammy Godsey or Lamar Smith.

Elsewhere in the prep playoff races Screven County and West Point narrowed the Class B eliminations down to eight teams by ousting Eatonton and Cuthbert.

Screven edged Eatonton, 3-2. West Point bumped Cuthbert, 4-1.

The teams now enter the second round of the best of three playoffs with Screven County playing a two out of three series with Wacona and West Point playing Sylvester.

Arnoldsville and Norcross have played one second round game, Arnoldsville taking the opener 3-2.

In the Class C playoffs Glenwood has advanced to the quarter-finals by defeating Butler. The losers won the first game 9-1, but were unable to capture the second important triumph as Glenwood took 11-2 and 14-2 victories to take the series.

Omega and Waresboro are locked at one game each in their playoffs for a quarter-final berth.

Sparta topped Dexter 11-1 in the first round and then moved ahead another notch in the playoffs by ousting Colvert 8-7. Both games were single elimination playoffs.

Action in both the Class B and C playoffs will continue this week.

with two in the sixth, Otey delivering a two-run, two-out single. Had Mainzer thrown to Charlie Williams, instead of racing Bullard to second on an attempted force, Fowler would have escaped without damage.

Limited to nine hits in the 16 innings, Atlanta tagged Ted Edmunds for seven in the first three innings of the second game.

Singles by Wooten and Smith, followed by a fielder's choice and an infield out, supplied a run in the first.

Doubles by Vern Petty and Brittin made it 2-0 in the second, but the Travs scored one in the home half. Three walks, the last intentional, and Ryan's RBI fly did it.

A bunt hit by Smith and singles by Sinovic and Petty brought in two more Cracker runs in the third. Petty's blow bounced over King, who was charged with an error, so he was credited with only one run batted in.

If McCall had been as wild as he usually is, the game could not have been completed. But, ironically, he helped the Crackers by retiring seven men in a row.

Mauch named Bill George (9-2) to hurl the series opener in Nashville Monday night, as the Crackers move in for six games in four days in the Dell.

CRACKER DIARY: Very Petty and Pete Whisenant, who haven't been hitting their weight of late, were benched in the first game. However, both got into the wild and wooley contest. Whisenant was around for two strikes as a pinch batter for Billy Smith, before beilng chased by Umpire Jack Kernan. Whisenant's ouster necessitated a wholesale shuffle in the already revised lineup since Mauch who started at third, had no more outfielders available. Junior Wooten was sen to center and Chuck Tanner shifted back to right. Mauch moved to first and Petty was inserted at third . . . Charlie Williams almost knocked himself out while making a great diving catch of R. C. Otey's floater to short center. Wooten, also chasing the ball, was shaken up when he leaped out of Williams' path . . . Umpire Kernan should put in for overtime. With his partner, Andy Mitchell, sidelined with a sore foot, Kernan worked all 21 innings of Sunday's steamers behind the plate. Bert Ramsey, Little Rock amateur, filled in on the bases.

Marmon Hurls No-Hit Tilt in Amateur Loop

Bishop Brothers' Ace Blanks Southeast 16-0; Candler Wins

Bishop Brothers' Richard Marmon topped a slate of high-class hurling in Sunday's Atlanta Amateur Baseball Federation by throwing a no-hit, no-run Southeast League victory over Southeast Hawks, 16-0.

Marmon whiffed 14, walked five trips by Gene Benton, and three as the Bishop nine, tied three hits each by Darrell Thomas, Jay Watson and Marmon. for the loop lead with Bethel at 6-1, banged 21 safeties, including three singles and two doubles in Candler Park recorded its seventh straight Crest League win against no losses, trimming Piedmont Park, 4-0, behind the consistently hot hurling of Frank Tippett, who allowed only a single to Kubby Cannon in the third and a double to Freddie Cannon in the eighth.

Tippett faced 28 men, striking out 10 and walking one. Only four men reached first, two were erased on double plays and one was caught stealing. Henry Hair went four-for-four for the winners and Jim Dillon rapped in three markers.

Tucker stands 7-0 atop the North Atlanta loop after nudging Duluth, 8-3, as Jimmy Ross and Doug Driver each cracked a pair of doubles. But star honors in that league went to Chamblee's Buster Jones, who eased Dunwoody down on one single, 17-0, as Mac McCloud supplied the punch with two singles and a triple.

Another North Atlanta beauty was the two-hit hurling of Roswell's Lowell Conner in stopping Doraville, 9-2, with David Scott, Carl Jameson and Bob Martin all homering for the winners.

Nifty relief hurling by Harold Scott enabled Welcome All Baptists to run their West Georgia League string to 7-0. Also in that loop Grantville socked Fairburn VFW, 10-4, and Pete Dewberry and Ace Arnall whacked four singles apiece in McIntosh's 16-1 trouncing of Raymond.

Loudest explosion was the Northwest Travelers' 26-hit, 18-7 lacing of the Travelers from Southwest, highlighted by Royce Britt's bases-loaded four-bagger in the fourth.

Bill Holland Posts Second Highest Time

INDIANAPOLIS, May 24 — (INS)—Veteran racing driver Bill Holland requalified Sunday for Saturday's Memorial Day Indianapolis Speedway Classic by recording the second fastest time of any qualifying car.

Bob Sweikert of Indianapolis, driving car No. 51, owned by A. E. Dean of Los Angeles, earlier bumped Holland, also of Indianapolis, during the last day of qualifying runs in which 38 drivers were trying to gain places tentatively won by 33 drivers.

Sweikert qualified with a speed of 136.872 miles per hour, edging out Holland, who had a mark of 134.439.

Holland, who won the race in 1949 and scored seconds in 1947, 1948 and 1950, came back in a car owned by Ray Crawford of Alhambra, Calif., and qualified with a 137.868 miles per hour.

Holland's speed has been bettered only by Bill Vukovich's 138.392 miles per hour. Vukovich is from Fresno, Calif.

Jim Bryan of Phoenix, Ariz., roared around the two and a half mile track at an average speed of 135.506 miles per hour in car No. 8 owned by John L. McDaniels, also of Phoenix.

Another qualifying driver was John Thompson, driving in car No. 56, owned by Dr. R. N. Soubrin of Flushing, N. Y. The speed was 135.262 miles per hour.

Atlanta Juniors Duel For Pittsburgh Jaunt

By BERT PRATHER

Atlanta's junior golfers will have a chance to grab one of three big prizes Monday at North Fulton golf course. This is the day Atlanta Elks Lodges stage an 18-hole elimination tournament to select three boys to make the trip to Pittsburgh with a seven-man Atlanta team for a match with Pittsburgh's best on June 10.

Marshall Mauldin, who will be in charge of the team and also Monday's tourney at North Fulton, says the low scorer in 14 to 15 age group and two low scorers in 15-17 year group will become eligible for the team.

Tommy Bates, City junior champion, is already assured a place on the team, as is Tommy Aaron, the Crackerland champion from Gainesville. Decatur Elks will sponsor Bates, while Aaron's father is sponsoring him. One boy from Macon is also to be named to the team, which will leave Atlanta June 8.

Working with Mauldin on this junior golf junket are L. B. Roane, Charlie Garrard, Tom Brisendine, Roy Darden of the Elks and Sam Eplan of Progressive Club.

The Atlanta team will also take in the final two days of the National Open Championship at Oakmont, Pa.

Monday is usually an off-day around most country clubs, but that was not expected to be the case at Capital City Country Club Monday.

The Southeastern sectional qualifying for the Professional Golfers' Association National Championship is scheduled there Tuesday and most of the visiting pros were expected to arrive a day early so as to get in a few practice shots and take a look at the layout. Tuesday's qualifying will be over the 36-hole medal play route.

Six places have been allotted this section for the national meet, scheduled for July 1-7 at Birmingham (Mich.) Country Club.

Henry Lindner of Augusta Country Club; Leo O'Grady of National PGA Golf Club, Dunedin, Fla.; Bud Werring of Eglin AFB, Fla., and Leo Beckmann, Savannah, secretary of the SEPGA, checked in Sunday.

East Lake Dogfite

M. E. Henley, J. S. Smith, Gene O'Brien and Donald O'Grien posted a minus two to win top place in East Lake Country Club dogfite play Sunday. Cat and dogfite honors went to Dr. and Mrs. T. E. McGeachy and Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Wilson. They carded a minus 11.

Broadjumper Christofferson Goes to Bama

John Christofferson of Columbus High has accepted a grant-in-aid to the University of Alabama and will enter that school next fall.

The rugged end, who performed for Coach Dickie Butler's Columbus Blue Devils this past football season, is also the Georgia schoolboy broadjump champion. He has cleared the 22-foot mark several times and this spring set a new state mark in this event. —ROBERTS.

Redwine Puts Take At $50,000 a Night

officer of the revenue department's field forces, said the agents broke down a door to gain entrance to The Pines after being refused permission to enter.

He said the establishment, nestled among pine trees on a hill just off State Highway 85, has the appearance of a "swanky mansion." He said the drive leading to the building was wired to ring a bell when passed over by a car, and that a "two-way mirror" inside the establishment "allowed the people inside to see out, but we couldn't see in."

Redwine said that about 100 persons, all from out of the county, were inside The Pines and that a large number of "big, expensive cars" were parked outside.

The "take" at The Pines has been reported to have been as high as $50,000 in one night, he said, adding that indications are that the establishment had been in operation for about two months.

Some of the 5,000 poker chips that were seized were marked "$1,000" and "The Pines" was printed on many of the chips, Redwine said.

HANDLES CASE

John J. Flynt, solicitor general of the Griffin circuit, has taken charge of the case and is expected to padlock the roadhouse, Redwine said. He said that citizens of Fayette County are asking for a special grand jury session to take action on the matter.

The revenue official, a resident of Fayetteville, said that he ordered the raid after receiving information that liquor was being illegally at The Pines. He said handled illegally at The Pines. He said he participated in the case as a "private citizen interested in keeping outside racketeers out of the county."

"We've got a clean county and we don't propose to let outside racketeers and gamblers slop over into our county," he declared. "We've seen what has happened to our neighboring counties who have not stopped outside racketeers from taking over.

COUNTY CLEAN

"We have an efficient solicitor-general and a courageous judge who have helped keep the county clean."

Redwine said that a number of gambling establishments are operating in the Atlanta section. "But I can't raid them without local help," he said.

The commissioner said he would be glad to assist local officers in making raids. "And I can tell them where there are some," he said.

2d Seized In Death Of Korean

By FORREST EDWARDS

SEOUL, Monday, May 25—(AP)—A second man has been arrested in the U. S. and is being returned to Korea for trial on charges of killing a Korean at an air base last September, the Fifth Air Force announced today.

Col. Jerome L. Lowenberg, Fifth Air Force judge advocate, identified the man as Airman 1/C Thomas L. Kinder, 21. He said Kinder had made a written statement that he shot Bang Soon Kil Sept. 27, 1952.

Robert W. Toth, 21, a discharged airman, was arrested at Pittsburgh, Pa., May 13, and already has been returned to Korea to face trial. Toth is charged with premeditated murder, conspiracy to commit premeditated murder and aggravated assault—assault with intent to do great bodily harm.

Lowenberg said murder charges were filed against Kinder in the U. S. but that he had not seen the charges.

Lowenberg said he understood that Kinder already had arrived in Japan and would be returned to Korea today or tomorrow.

Kinder's personnel records were not immediately available. Lowenberg said he understood Kinder had been arrested at Osceola, Wis., where Kinder was on duty with an Air Force unit and that Kinder had been held in detention at Ft. Snelling, Minn., before starting back to Korea.

Lowenberg said there was a possibility of a third arrest in the case—that of an Air Force officer still reported to be on duty in Korea.

Lowenberg did not name the officer and said further investigation would be made before taking any action against him.

Toth is the first former member of the armed forces to be returned to custody for court martial under a 1951 uniform code.

In Pittsburgh, Atty. Anthony R. McGrath said he will ask the United States Supreme Court for an immediate writ of habeas corpus to require the Air Force to return Toth to the U. S. McGrath, who has been retained by Toth's mother, Mrs. Jacob Mertz, yesterday asked President Eisenhower to intervene.

The attorney, who said he hopes to have his petition ready for presentation to the Supreme Court Monday at Washington, declared the high court will be asked to take immediate and original jurisdiction in Toth's case on the grounds his constitutional rights were violated by the manner in which he was seized and taken out of the country.

PAGEANTRY OF THE CORONATION

Anointing, Not Crowning Rite, Will Make Elizabeth a Queen

pel, the Creed, but she is not yet Queen. She is made Queen by the act of anointing, not by the crowning itself.

The anointing with oil is one of the sacraments of the Church.

The archbishop anoints with the sign of the cross, and will pray:

"Our Lord Jesus Christ, the Son of God who by His Father was anointed with gladness, pour down upon her head and heart the Blessing of the Holy Ghost."

By virtue of the anointing she is now Queen and will take her seat on the Chair of Scone of Edward I.

The drama of the sacramental acts continues. She will receive the Sword of Justice. She is vested with the royal robes similar to those of a priest. The Orb with the Cross upon it is given to her and the archbishop will say:

"When you see this Orb thus set under the Cross, remember that the whole world is subject to the Power and Empire of Christ our Redeemer."

She will receive the ring—"the ensign of Kingly Dignity and of Defense of the Catholic Faith." The two sceptres of Justice and Mercy are placed in her hands. They represent in the superb words of the English law of the "Queen's Justice" and the "Queen's Peace" that she is now Queen; she has been anointed and robed. Then comes the crowning by the archbishop and "God Save the Queen."

She is then given the Bible:

"We present you with this Book, the most valuable thing that this world affords. Here is Wisdom, here is the royal law. These are the lively Oracles of God."

She is blessed and enthroned and homage is paid.

From all this tremendous pageantry, the proclamations and acts of state, the service then turns quietly into its completion in the Communion service within which it began.

She herself will offer to the archbishop, to be placed on the altar, the Bread and the Wine of the sacrament, and with it offer herself and us all to be of the Body of Christ and of His purpose. She will kneel by herself and take "the Body of our Lord Jesus Christ which was given for Thee and the Blood of our Lord Jesus Christ which was shed for Thee."

If, reader, you want to help her, she would ask you to follow this in the Communion service of the Book of Common Prayer. Have it ready for this need and, beside the television or the wireless, join in yourself at the point which will mean most to her.

"God Save the Queen."

Tomorrow: The Stone of Destiny.

CORONATION LABOR CROWNED — LONDON, May 24 — John Sutton, 23, will view his work in Westminster Abbey first hand during Coronation. He is one of eight laborers chosen by ballot from workmen refurbishing abbey to attend the ceremony. Left, he's already rented a snazzy outfit. Queen Elizabeth suggested the balloting.

Excess Profits Renewal Forecast by Humphrey

vised "Meet the Press" program. But he emphasized that, regardless of whether it was extended, business still would be bothered by "the vicious things" in the tax. He explained that the tax "fakes into account earnings and expenditures for the full year."

Touching on another controversial subject, Humphrey defended the administration-proposed $5,250,000,000 cutback in military spending authority for the year ahead. He said it would produce "more real security and faster" than was possible under "a lot of paper goals set up" under the preceding Democratic administration.

He said the defense program would "not be slowing down, that we will be spending as much this year as last even though we hope to make savings."

JOINS CHORUS

Earlier, Senator Jackson (Dem., Wash.) added his voice to the chorus demanding the resignation of Charles E. Wilson, secretary of defense. He said it was "fantastic" for the secretary to maintain that the $5,000,000,000 cutback in Air Force funds would produce more, rather than less planes.

Appearing on the Columbia Broadcasting Company "Man of the Week" television interview, the West Coast Democrat declared that it was Wilson, not the President, who "insisted upon this cut."

WILSON BLAME

"I'm sure if Mr. Wilson said we needed the additional five billion for airplanes that the President would have gone along with it," Jackson said.

The senator declared he thought Wilson "would do much better at making automobiles than what he is doing now."

Joining in criticism of the Air Force cuts were Senators Johnson of Texas, Democratic leader, Holland of Florida, and Lester C. Hunt of Wyoming, also Democrats.

In a broadcast to Texas constituents, Johnson declared he saw nothing "to justify a slowdown or a stretch-out of our preparedness program."

"If these reductions are put into effect," he said, "we can only hope and pray that no mistake has been made, hope and pray that no enemy will strike — that we will be in a position to defend ourselves if an enemy should strike."

GOP SUPPORT

From Republican ranks on Capitol Hill, however, came a statement that the military budget remains "adequate" despite the cuts. In voicing this view, Rep. Dewey Short of Missouri, who heads the House armed services committee, cautioned against further reductions.

"Any further cuts might be dangerous," he said. "I am convinced that the President approved the budget from his best military judgment, not for political reasons. He must convince Congress of this and must also convince members that the budget is down to the muscle now."

It was against this background that Humphrey said the nation would be getting "more defense and better defense than it had in the past" under the new budget.

"I think the Democrats voted such large sums that they couldn't be spent and get value for the money," the secretary said in restating this administration's view that the Truman administration left the nation's financial set-up "in bad shape."

If he were still in business, Humphrey, former steel executive, declared he would be "very optimistic" at this time because of steps already taken by the new administration.

Repudiate McCarthy, ADA Urges Ike; GOP Chief Hall Defends Wisconsinite

By HAROLD OLIVER

WASHINGTON, May 24—(AP)—Americans for Democratic Action (ADA) today called on President Eisenhower and his leaders in Congress to repudiate Senator McCarthy (Rep.-Wis.) and to reject his investigating methods "as political weapons."

The six-year-old organization whose chapter aims at furthering political "liberalism" adopted a resolution to this effect. It said both parties have failed to meet their responsibility to "fight this evil."

From a different forum, Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall defended McCarthy. He reminded a questioner on a radio-television program (NBC's Youth Wants to Know) that a member of Congress is elected by the voters in his state or district, and added:

"CERTAIN TACTICS"

"We should be loath to attempt to smear him because he uses certain tactics which we may not approve, but at least it brings out situations which we all want to cure."

In concluding its three-day convention, the ADA:

1. Approved a domestic policy platform accusing the new Republican administration of "engineering a recession instead of laboring to avert one" and of stalling the fight against racial discrimination by a "featherbed of do-nothingism and empty platitudes.

2. Heard James B. Carey, CIO secretary-treasurer and ADA national board member, indict the administration as a "stacked deal" and a "government by and for big business." In a speech, Carey asserted recent months have proved that President Eisenhower is "a compliant captive of the old guard Republicanism, of big business, industry and reaction."

3. Elected James E. Doyle, 37, of Madison, Wis., a lawyer and Democratic state chairman of Wisconsin, and Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr., professor of history at Harvard University, as national co-chairmen of ADA to succeed Francis Biddle, former Democratic attorney general. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, widow of the New Deal President whose ideals are preached by ADA, was elected honorary chairman.

The convention resolution on McCarthy asserted responsible GOP leaders have "knuckled under" to McCarthy without a struggle, possibly as secret strategy to use him against liberal Democrats in 1954. It added too many Democrats have tried to sit out this "great threat to survival of freedom," and continued:

"We call upon the millions of Americans who recognize this evil to make their views known to their political representatives. We urge our religious and educational leaders to stand firm in the face of this immoral and subversive attack and to continue to expose its essential un-Americanism.

"We call upon the Republican leaders in Congress and the White House to repudiate Senator McCarthy and to reject his method as political weapons. We urge the Democratic leadership to meet the moral, religious and political tests of McCarthy's attacks on our liberties through constructive opposition to his methods at every opportunity."

$100,000 Gem Holdup Of Woman

ROME, N. Y., May 24 (AP)—Mrs. Kate Putnam, largest individual stockholder of the Union News Company, was held up in her home last night by three men who escaped with an estimated $100,000 worth of jewelry and $300 to $400 in cash.

Oneida County sheriff's deputies said the men entered Mrs. Putnam's home on Lake Delta, north of this central New York city, through a basement window and broke the lock on the door of her bedroom.

Investigators reported Mrs. Putnam was tied to her bed with rawhide laces and a pillow slip was pulled over her head.

Mrs. Putnam's attorney, Johnson D. Mac Mahon estimated the value of the stolen jewelry at $100,000.

Mrs. Putnam was alone on the estate. Her husband, Jesse, died about 10 years ago.

Boys Best At Reasoning, Says School Official

ATLANTA, GA., May 25—A boy reasons better than a girl and both boys and girls of today know more than their parents did at high school age. These facts are based on a report by a National Educational group which studied the half-million high school seniors due to graduate this year.

As for boys using more reasoning than girls, the education official said, "If you have something that calls for memorizing, you can't beat a girl, but when it comes to reasoning a boy will put it together and come up with something. The girls are afraid to take a chance because they're too conscientious."

There are several hundred Atlanta high school seniors of both sexes graduating this year who are deserving of a college education. If your boy or girl graduate wants to go to college and has the background to benefit by a college education, don't let lack of adequate funds prevent your giving him or her the opportunities of college.

above Morris' head. Cloud saw the menace to Morris and shouted to Dalton to drop the hammer. Dalton ignored the command, Chief Sutton said, and Cloud fired.

The brother then started running through the building. A warning shot was fired and he halted. He was placed in the DeKalb County jail.

Evidence in the slaying will be turned over to the DeKalb County coroner for investigation, Sutton said.

Sutton said he had known the Dalton brothers for several years.

Relatives Welcome 'Ghost,' Wonder Whom They Buried

body of the man they buried was found in Calhoun, Ga.

Although the letter had been written on May 14, it did not reach the Shores family until May 22, the day after the funeral.

"I got right up to Oceana and found Frank alive and feeling fine," said J. Ballard. "I brought him back home with me and the family all got together. It's a terrible thing and I hope I never have to go through anything else like it again, but it's nice that he's with us again."

Now, however, police are faced with the task of finding out just who is buried in Frank's grave.

Coroner Richard E. Kelley said the body would be exhumed tomorrow. He said police had the fingerprints of the unknown man and would attempt to identify him as soon as possible.

"It's just a big mistake all around," said Sheriff Earl Cook. "All I know is that this fellow who looks like Shores died in a jail in Calhoun a week ago Saturday. They said he had asked to spend the night in jail and they found him dead from a cerebral hemorrhage the next morning."

Police in Calhoun learned that the dead man had told a waitress that he had a wife in Maryville, Tenn. The case was quickly traced to Frank Shores' estranged wife, who lives in Maryville.

Mrs. Shores was shown a picture of the dead man and thought it to be her husband. Both Mrs. Shores and J. Ballard went to Calhoun, identified the body and had it shipped here for burial.

"It seems impossible I could make such a mistake," said J. Ballard. "They both seemed to be about the same age. Frank would have been . . . rather he will be 50 in August and this fellow must have been just about that age.

"He looked a little lighter than when I had last seen Frank, which had been about a year, but he had written that he had lost some weight. And I guess it was those scars that convinced me.

Moreland, Philpott Eye New Jobs

By JACK NELSON

Two Georgia soldiers, looking much healthier than when they were released from the hellish life of a Communist prison camp a little more than a month ago, are glad the furor of their homecoming finally has subsided.

Pfc. William Glenn Moreland, 23, of Atlanta, and Pvt. Robert Floyd Philpott, 24, of Hogansville, arrived in Georgia three weeks ago to tumultuous welcome celebrations. Now that the hullabaloo of parades, public appearances and interviews by press, radio and television is over, the soldiers are making plans for the future.

Pvt. Philpott Pfc. Moreland

Moreland said he expects to return to his old job as a butcher. Philpott has bought a large lot on State Highway 100, near his father's home on a Hogansville rural route, and plans to enter the poultry business.

Both are expected to return to civilian life soon. Moreland's 30-day furlough expires on June 8 and Philpott's on June 3. Because their tours of duty expired while they were in prison camp, they are expected to be released from military service shortly.

REHABILITATION

A Third Army spokesman said the two will report to the hospital at Fort McPherson upon termination of their furloughs. He said they probably will be discharged after a period of rehabilitation.

Moreland, a six-foot two-inch man of athletic build when he entered service, has gained 25 pounds since his release by the Reds. He now weighs 153, 33 pounds less than when he went into combat.

Philpott, who because of his short stature (five feet, two inches) stood on a box behind a pulpit so he could be seen when addressing a church congregation in Hogansville recently, has gained 19 pounds since his release. He weighs 26 pounds less than his normal weight of 145 pounds.

As for immediate plans, Moreland and his wife will leave this week for a two-week vacation in North Carolina, and Philpott plans nothing but "rest" at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Philpott.

FOUND A HOUSE

Moreland said that since his return, he has been too busy looking for a house to take a vacation. After a long search, he found one that suited he and his wife. They bought it, a five-room house at the corner of Bentine St. and Custer Ave., S. E.

Philpott has at least one more public appearance to make. He is scheduled to accept the Floyd Philpott Fund in ceremonies at Hogansville Tuesday night. The fund was sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and other Hogansville interests.

Moreland and Philpott both took issue with statements attributed to a repatriated prisoner of war from North Carolina.

"LIFE PLEASANT"

Cpl. Jimmy Pinkston of Jacksonville was quoted by newspapers as saying his Red captors "did everything they could to make our life pleasant . . . they were always open to suggestions from us and they carried them out whenever it was possible."

The two Georgia soldiers said they would like to "quiz" Pinkston about his statements.

"Quite a few hundred American boys who will never come back were left on the hill (a PW graveyard) at the prison camp where I was," Moreland said. "does that sound like the Chinese were making life pleasant?"

Moreland said hundreds of Americans died at Camp No. 1 from jaundice and other diseases caused by malnutrition and lack of medical attention.

7 CHICKENS, 260 MEN

As for the chicken Pinkston said were fed to the PWs, Moreland said, "yes, we were fed chicken a few times. It wasn't very often, but whenever it was, we got seven chickens for 260 men."

What about the Chinese Reds accepting suggestions from PWs? "If you had any suggestions, you'd better keep them to yourself," was Moreland's answer.

Philpott pointed out that there were a few PWs who received better treatment and food than the majority. "But those who got better treatment went along with the Chinese on their propaganda campaign," he said.

Philpott said it was common knowledge among the PWs at Camp No. 1 that a few were moved out of camp to live under better conditions on the edge of Korean villages. He said some PWs received better treatment because their parents in the United State submitted to Communist propaganda and communicated with the Reds.

Model 4-30 Chain Saw Newest Addition to McCulloch Line

VERSATILE HYDRA-LIFT CRANE—The Hydra-Lift truck crane does the job as part of the truck. This is one of the hundreds of jobs the versatile Hydra-Lift crane will do. Contractors are invited to see the Hydra-Lift demonstrated at the W. C. Caye Co.

W. C. Caye Hydra-Lift Crane Opens Big Jobs to Contractors

Gives 6,400 Lbs. Lifting Capacity To Trucks

There's big money in big jobs, and trucks equipped with Pitman Hydra-Lift crane equipment are in demand. Take the prefab industry alone, its needs are tremendous. Other jobs include handling package freight, pole setting, setting tombstones, placing signs, bridge, culvert, sewer construction, setting underground tanks, loading trucks, erecting steel, loading logs, cotton, bulk material handling; the list is tremendous. And so are the possibilities for the far-seeing trucker who invests in dependable Hydra-Lift equipment.

W. C. Caye Jr., vice-president of W. C. Caye & Co., today said, "There's no limit on the amount of money a man can save if his truck is equipped with a Hydra-Lift. It fits any type truck, 1½ tons or over, and installation is easy. Any garage or welding shop can do the job in a few hours. And the Hydra-Lift takes up only 37 inches behind the truck cab, allowing normal use of the truck bed."

Mr. Caye continued, "The man who drives the truck also operates the Pitman Hydra-Lift. It only takes a few hours to learn. Operation is by simple push-pull knobs that can be placed either inside or outside the cab. We, here at W. C. Caye & Co., consider the Pitman Hydra-Lift to be the perfect answer for the contractor who has an occasional, if not frequent, need for a costly full-time crane, but not a constant enough need to warrant its installation. We're sure that nothing can compare with it for performance or price."

Pitman's hydraulic Hydra-Lift truck crane gives your truck a lifting capacity of 6,400 pounds, and a hydraulically-powered swinging boom that adjusts from 12 to 17 to 22-foot lengths. The boom swings 180 degrees and lifts through an arc of 100 degrees—nimble enough to reach into a gondola freight car and pick up bulky objects. The boom cannot fall, because it is lowered hydraulically. The operator has good visibility at all times, and adjustable outrigger supports give your truck extra support and safety when lifting over the side, even in the most uneven terrain. Within its capacity range, the Pitman Hydra-Lift is the strongest truck-crane on the market today. And because the Hydra-Lift uses simple hydraulic power, there's almost nothing to wear out, no expensive replacement of parts. The only maintenance required is periodic lubrication and occasional tightening of cable clamps and drive belts.

W. C. Caye & Company invites you to phone, write, or call in person at their location at 787 Windsor St., S. W., for more details, or for a demonstration of the Hydra-Lift in the firm's demonstration area adjacent to their offices.

Besides the Pitman Hydra-Lift, W. C. Caye & Company also distributes the Buck Portable Heavy-Duty hoist, and the products of Allis-Chalmers Mfg. Co., Baker Mfg. Co., Gar Wood Industries, Kwik-Mix, Smith Engineering Works, Jay Mfg. Co., All-Purpose Spreader Co., German-Rupp Co., White Mfg. Co. and many others, in addition to making a complete line of all types of reinforcing steel.

The W. C. Caye steel line includes every item among the accessories and supplies required for all types of concrete work.

Joe H. Brady Distributor In Southeast

Joe H. Brady & Associates, the oldest and largest chain saw distributor in the South, is tremendously enthusiastic over the new Model 4-30 McCulloch Chain Saw currently being delivered to the dealers in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi, Tennessee and Louisiana. This new saw recently released by McCulloch is an addition to McCulloch Motors Corporation proven group of chain saws . . . their Model 3-25, the 5-49, and the 7-55.

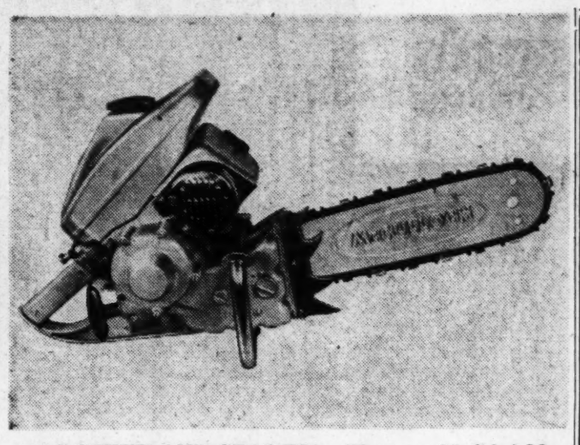

The first McCulloch saw, the 5-49, quickly swept the market and became the best seller and the finest producer on the market. Several years later, the 5-49 was followed by the amazing Model 3-25—the first truly one-man chain saw that could be called a production saw. After another lapse of time, McCulloch introduced the Model 7-55 saw to fill the growing need for a saw of this size and horsepower.

With the new Model 4-30, now being shown, brought to the market after long and thorough laboratory and field testing, the logging and pulpwood industry now has available the most powerful, the best balanced and lightest production one-man chain saw on the market.

This saw is a "honey" to use. It weighs only 4 pounds by honest weight and has a full 30 horsepower accurately tested on the dynamometer. It is a "Blue Ribbon" money maker because of its performance. The speed, stamina, and light weight of the McCulloch Model 4-30 make it the ideal one-man saw for production logging, pulp cutting, tree maintenance, and other woodcutting operations in all timber up to the very largest. Equipped with a 36-inch blade, this model saw will easily fell and buck trees up to five feet in diameter and is often used for even larger cuts.

The new lightweight efficient labor saving high production Model 4-30 chain saw now is an added feature to the family of chain saw leaders that are being distributed nationwide through trained sales and service facilities. The McCulloch Chain Saws are distributed in the South by Joe H. Brady & Associates through his dealers which in the state of Georgia include:

Courtesy With Tickets Aim of KC Police

KANSAS CITY—(AP)—Can a cop hand a triffic violator a ticket without irritating him? Perhaps it's impossible, but he should try. That's what Sgt. James Sprague, training officer at Kansas City's police academy, thinks. He is recommending the following code of etiquette to his rookies:

Be courteous. Don't snarl at the victim, and above all don't needle him with wisecracks ("Flying a little low today, bud?" or the even hoarier, "Where's the fire?")

Be serious, however, so the offender won't be unduly tickled by his brush with the law.

Don't put your foot on the bumper of his car like a hunter on the back of a lion he just motorists. Stand erect, in dignibagged. This somehow annoys fied posture as you write out the ticket.

Poultry Raisers Endorse Super Quality 'Nu-Day-Lay'

So outstanding has been the success of Standard Feed Milling Company's new laying ration formula, called Super Quality Nu-Day-Lay, that both large-scale commercial poultry raisers and the back-yard flock owner are singing its praises.

The Super Quality Nu-Day-Lay formula is the result of much intensive research work by leading agricultural colleges and follows the high success achieved by the "high-energy" broiler ration formulas, like Super Quality Professional Broiler Ration.

Not only does Super Quality Nu-Day-Lay increase average egg production over that obtained formerly by the mash and grain feeding methods, but it secures such increases on a lower feed consumption per dozen eggs, and, at the same time maintains or increases body weight. Tests made by these colleges showed egg production improvement of 10 to 21 per cent, with production of up to 70 more eggs per bag of feed, a 30 per cent better feed efficiency, lower mortality and a ½-pound better weight per bird at the end of the tests.

Starting from this technical research work, the Standard Feed Milling Company has developed a practical "high-efficiency" laying ration formula that eliminates the guessing, labor and both of grain feedings. This all-mash Super Quality Nu-Day-Lay is made in both mash and pelleted form.

Nu-Day-Lay is also made in 21 per cent protein formula for those poultry raisers who have home-grown grain and wish to use it. A folder fully describing this new highly successful ration is offered free.

In addition to the extra values offered by Super Quality Nu-Day-Lay, feeders may also obtain valuable and highly desirable premiums at discounts ranging up to 60 per cent of their retail prices by using Super Quality Poultry, Dairy and Hog Feed tags. Among the current premium offerings is a new 6½-foot Whirlaway Glass Spinning Rod and Reel, that is now so popular, a 20-inch wide "Land 'em" Floating Aluminum Landing Net with 36-inch deep Nylon netting and joined handle, and a handsome Alladin Sports Kit, consisting of two quart vacuum bottles, metal lunch box and plastic carrying case.

A folder fully describing these and other Super Quality premiums will be mailed to all requesting it from the Standard Feed Milling Company, 4 Fairlie Street, Atlanta.

HIGH PRODUCERS—J. A. Young of Newnan is proud of his flock of high-producing New Hampshire Reds. Mr. Young says, "I am now feeding Super Quality Nu-Day-Lay and have been for approximately three months. Two weeks after starting on Nu-Day-Lay I noticed an increase of 48 to 50 eggs per day from my flock of 750 hens, which were 10 months old at the time. I am well pleased with the feed. I am going to use it from now on." Below, Mr. Young in his modern poultry house. See story.

Designed for Fast Erection And Economy

There is good news this week for all industrial and commercial businesses which have need for strong, durable buildings with an abundance of clear, unobstructed floor space.

It is the new Long-Span building which is the latest addition to the famous Quonset line produced by Great Lakes Steel Corporation and sold locally by Atlantic Steel Company.

John Butler, manager of Atlantic Steel's Quonset department, said, "Now, for the first time, Long-Span buildings with 50-feet and 60-feet clear spans are available. They are ideal for light manufacturing, warehousing, and other uses such as garages, supermarkets and entertainment places."

Designed to be erected faster and at tremendous savings to builders, the new Long-Span buildings introduce an unusual degree of flexibility.

Basically the new buildings are either 50 or 60 feet wide with a length of 48 feet. But the building's length is not limited by the basic unit. Additional 16-feet sections may be added to get the length desired.

And width is not limited to 50 or 60 feet either. Several of the new Long-Spans may be used side by side to form a structure of the width desired. For example, five units of the Long-Span 60' would result in a building 299 feet wide.

The buildings are available with 20-feet-high sidewalls or 15-feet-high sidewalls.

Economical interior adaptations, drop ceilings and insulation may be added to the Long-Spans if desired. This is made possible by the famous nailable Stran-Steel Framing used in the buildings.

Individualized architecture is easily obtained with the new Long-Spans, since masonry may be used in side walls, end walls or both.

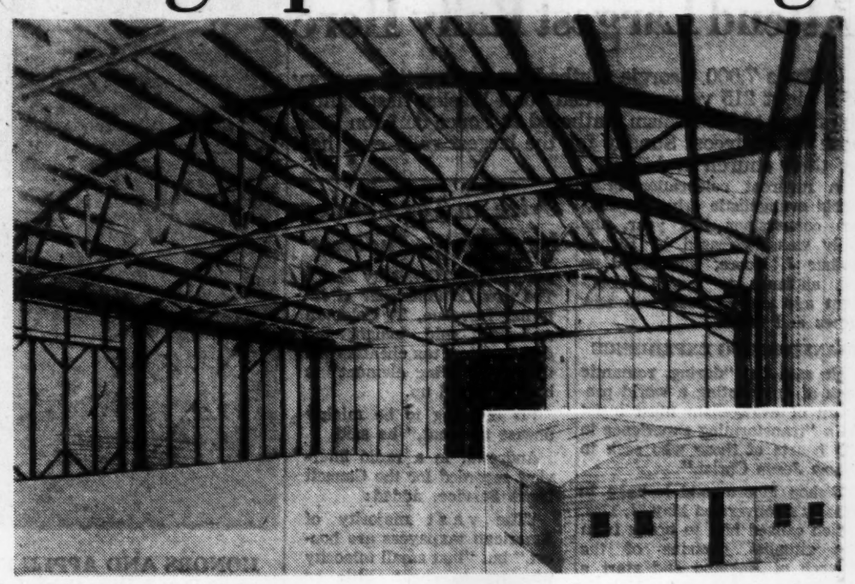

One feature of the Long-Spans is the use of all-steel doors, either overhead or sliding. These doors come in two large sizes and may be used in both sidewalls and endwalls. Sizes of the doors are 12 by 12 or 14 by 13½ feet.

Another unusual but highly desirable feature of the new Quonsets is the availability of plastic sheets for use in the roof as skylights.

And of course, the new Long-Spans offer all of the important features which have made Quonsets famous. They are strong and durable, because they are of all-steel construction. They cannot possibly rot and are fireproof. And their economy is the greatest of all advantages. Long-Spans can be built in a hurry at low cost.

Introduction of the Long-Span building opens up new roads for business and industry, because they not only permit rapid installation and occupancy, but they provide clear, unobstructed clear spans of 50 or 60 feet as desired by the builder.

You can find out all of the details concerning the new Long-Spans from a representative of the Atlantic Steel Company who will be glad to check your requirements and give you an estimate. Just call or write John Butler, manager of Atlantic Steel Company's Quonset Department, 575 14th St., N. Y., Atlanta, EM. 3451.

CLEAR, UNOBSTRUCTED SPANS—This interior view shows the wide, unobstruct area made possible by the new Long-Span buildings introduced in Atlanta by Atlantic Steel Co. A new member of the famous Quonset line, this building is equipped with steel overhead door in end wall, steel sliding door in side wall and plastic sheets in roof for skylighting. Inset shows the building's appearance from the outside. Additional units may be added to both sides and ends to increase size of buildings. (See story.)

7,000 Georgia Methodists Attend Largest Rally Here

Some 7,000 Georgia Methodists, in devoted memory of a night 215 years ago when John Wesley first lighted the flame of Methodism, gathered at Ponce de Leon Park here on Pentecost Sunday for the largest rally ever held by their church in Atlanta.

In reverent celebration of a world evangelistic drive for 200,000 conversions this year, the rally was addressed by Bishop Arthur J. Moore, who called on the audience to march "confident and courageous" into new times and tasks.

TRANSFORMING EXPERIENCE

He said the "daring, romantic task of augmenting a world program of evangelism must insist on a "transforming experience in the hearts of those who seek to follow Jesus Christ."

Bishop Moore paid homage to Wesley's conversion May 24, 1738, which caused him to break from the ritualist doctrine of the Church of England and start a "veritable revolution" which is now bannered by 30,000,000 people.

Reading Luther's preface to the Book of Romans, he said "this experience at Aldersgate seized Wesley and sent him with ceaseless, restless spirit to preach the simple doctrine of redemption."

"PUT UP A SCHOOL"

He said Methodism is characterized by insisting that learning and piety go together—"where we put up a chapel we should put up a school," and by fearless application of Christian principles to social problems.

"Only by the assertion of Christian conscience will the purity, power and program of Pentecost maintain its heaven to heart meaning," the bishop said.

Bishop Moore, whose heavy schedule called for him to make another rally appearance in Athens Sunday night, said "we Methodists don't claim to be the only church, we only want to be a branch of the true vine—Jesus Christ."

EVANGELISTIC "VICTORY"

The Rev. C. B. Cochran, pastor of Pattillo Memorial Church, Decatur, signified the rally as an evangelistic "victory."

He said Southeastern Methodists had gone forth in April and May and won 81,000 persons, "12,000 of them" in the Atlanta area, but their daring task for 200,000 conversions was not completed.

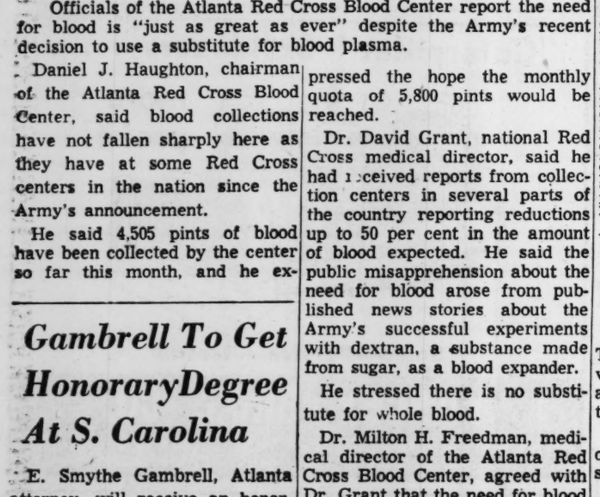

The Atlanta rally was one of 500 held Sunday across the nation in triple tribute to Pentecost, the evangelism drive, and to Dr. Wesley, whose only teaching in America was done as a missionary in Georgia.

EMORY CLUB APPEARS

The Emory Glee Club, bound for Europe on summer tour, gave a sacred concert, directed by Dr. Malcolm H. Dewey.

Other ministers taking part in the rally were: the Rev. Peter Manning, Park Street Methodist; the Rev. Hoke Sewell, conference secretary for evangelism; the Rev. J. W. O. McKibben, supervisor of the Atlanta West District; the Rev. Nat G. Long, Peachtree Road Methodist; and the Rev. Rembert Sisson, Druid Hills Methodist, who presided.

Among the hymns sung by the audience were two written by Charles Wesley, brother of the Methodist founder, who was a secretary to General Oglethorpe in Savannah.

Drive on Tax Cheaters Increasing—Andrews

WASHINGTON, May 24—(AP)—The new Commissioner of Internal Revenue, T. Coleman Andrews, said tonight the drive against tax cheaters "in the racketeering element" is being stepped up.

"It is going to be mighty unwise to cheat," he said.

Andrews, in a radio interview recorded for the Gannett News Service, added:

"The vast majority of American taxpayers are honest," but "that small minority who try to cheat, little or much, are going to have to toe the line."

Perry Seeks Re-election To PSC Job

James A. Perry, native of Gwinnett County, Sunday announced he would be a candidate for re-election next year to the Georgia Public Service Commission.

James A. Perry

Perry said he is making an early announcement for re-election because of rumors that he would take advantage of the retirement plan as provided by the last session of the Legislature. He said he would "rather work" than retire.

A member of the commission for 38 years, he claims that in length of service he is the dean of the members of all state utilities regulatory bodies in the United States. Prior to being named to the commission in December, 1911, he practiced law for many years in Lawrenceville.

Perry served several years as commission chairman and is a past president of the National Association of Railroad and Utilities Commissioners.

He claims credit for casting the deciding vote which made possible the beginning of hydro-generation of electricity in North Georgia. He said he worked out the first Rural Electrification Program in Georgia and lead the fight that brought natural gas to the state.

Atom's Core Is Smaller Than Experts Thought

By WILLIAM L. LAURENCE
New York Times, News Service, Special to The Atlanta Constitution

NEW YORK, May 24—A new type of measuring "rod" for the infinitesimal, devised by two Columbia University physicists, has disclosed that the nucleus of the atom, treasure-house of cosmic energy and inner sanctum of the material universe, is 15 to 20 per cent smaller in radius than it had been believed to be since its discovery in 1911 by Loard Rutherford.

This means that the volume of the nucleus, source of explosive power for both the atomic and the hydrogen bombs and of atomic energy in general, is 40 to 50 per cent smaller, and hence correspondingly denser.

LATEST PROBINGS

In other words, the latest probings within the nucleus of the atom have provided evidence to the effect that the citadel of the material world, in which about 99.95 per cent of all the matter and energy of the universe is concentrated, is about twice as dense as physicists had thought it was.

According to accepted data, the nucleus takes up only one-thousandth of one-billionth of the volume of an atom and has a density 240 trillion times that of water.

The new data indicates that the nucleus occupies no more than half a trillionth of the volume of the atom, which makes its density twice as high as before, namely, 480 trillion times the density of water. This means that given such a density, a quart of water would weigh 480,000 million tons.

SMALLEST OF ELEMENTS

An atom, the smallest unit of any of the elements, has a diameter of one hundred-millionth of a centimeter. This is an entity so small that if a drop of water were magnified to the size of the earth the atoms in the drop would be smaller than oranges. Yet the diameter of the atom is 10,000 times the diameter of the nucleus, thus showing that the atom consists largely of empty space.

The Columbia experiments, announced today by Prof. James Rainwater, indicate, he said, that the constant factor for nuclear radius is no more than twelve-hundredths of a trillionth of a centimeter and even a little smaller in some cases, namely, a 15 to 20 per cent decrease in the generally accepted value.

The investigations were carried out during the last two years with Columbia's 386,000,000 electron-volt sunchro-cyclotron at Nevis, N. Y., with support from the Office of Naval Research and the Atomic Energy Commission. Collaborating with Professor Rainwater was Val Fitch, a graduate student in physics.

The probing of the core of the nucleus, Dr. Rainwater said, opens the way to a revolutionary concept—a nucleus with a very dense center gradually becoming less and less dense as it approaches the edges, where it becomes "fuzzy."

Such a concept may lead to new worlds within the nucleus of the atom. Just as the atom as a whole is conceived as a minuscule solar system, with the positively charged nucleus serving as the sun in the center, around which revolve the negatively charged electrons like planets in their orbits, so the nucleus itself may turn out to be a solar system, with an inner sun around which revolve particles named pimesons, nuclear constituents 276 times the mass of the electron.

Army Need of Whole Blood Continues, Red Cross Says

Officials of the Atlanta Red Cross Blood Center report the need for blood is "just as great as ever" despite the Army's recent decision to use a substitute for blood plasma.

Daniel J. Haughton, chairman of the Atlanta Red Cross Blood Center, said blood collections have not fallen sharply here as they have at some Red Cross centers in the nation since the Army's announcement.

He said 4,505 pints of blood have been collected by the center so far this month, and he expressed the hope the monthly quota of 5,800 pints would be reached.

Dr. David Grant, national Red Cross medical director, said he had received reports from collection centers in several parts of the country reporting reductions up to 50 per cent in the amount of blood expected. He said the public misapprehension about the need for blood arose from published news stories about the Army's successful experiments with dextran, a substance made from sugar, as a blood expander.

He stressed there is no substitute for whole blood.

Dr. Milton H. Freedman, medical director of the Atlanta Red Cross Blood Center, agreed with Dr. Grant that the need for blood is just as great, if not greater, since the successful use of dextran.

Dr. Freedman said all dextran does is help to combat shock. He called it a "temporary stop-gap for emergency use." He said by saving the lives of soldiers on the battlefields dextran actually increases the need for whole blood at medical centers where the wounded men are moved. He said most patients who receive dextran need whole blood transfusions later.

Dr. Freedman also pointed out that blood collections still are needed to produce gamma globulin and serum albumin. Gamma globulin is used in the fight against paralytic polio, among other things, and albumin is used as a blood expander.

Gambrell To Get Honorary Degree At S. Carolina

E. Smythe Gambrell, Atlanta attorney, will receive an honorary doctor of laws degree from the University of South Carolina at graduation exercises to be held on the campus at Columbia June 1.

E. Smythe Gambrell

A graduate of the University of South Carolina, Gambrell received his law degree from Harvard College. He was a member of the Emory University Law School faculty for 18 years. He is president of the Georgia Chamber of Commerce.

The university will also confer honorary degrees on Dr. Stephen Taber, university professor emeritus of geology and mineralogy; B. M. Edwards, Columbia banker and civic leader, and Robert T. Haslam of New York, chemical engineer and oil executive.

FEDERAL BEAT

New Plan Would 'Bump' Thousands

By ANNE GOWEN

A new priority system to determine who should hold federal jobs covered by Civil Service would cause a complete turnover in "several thousand" government jobs in Georgia if it is put into effect, according to officials here.

Civil Service Regional Director O. E. Myers Sunday confirmed reports that Washington officials are studying a plan to replace indefinite appointees now holding government jobs with permanent appointees who were dismissed recently in a flock of federal agency staff reductions.

Myers said it is impossible to estimate accurately the number of workers who would be affected if the plan is accepted, but he said there are "several thousand" indefinite appointees holding federal jobs in Georgia.

Myers said there is a "good possibility" that the national Civil Service Commission will approve the plan. Other observers here have speculated that it may be put into operation early this summer.

In its rough form, Myers said, the new system would allow a permanent employee who is separated from one agency because of staff reductions to replace an indefinitely-appointed worker holding a similar job in another agency.

Right now a permanent employee may "bump" an indefinite appointee in the same agency, but not in any other, Myers said.

A permanent employee is one who has passed the regular Civil Service exam for his position. An indefinite appointment usually is made without the usual examination procedure when there are no permanent workers available to fill empty jobs, Myers said.

Governor Talmadge will speak at a luncheon meeting of the Department of Agriculture's USDA Club at noon Wednesday at the Elks Club. The Georgia Tech Glee Club quartet will furnish music.

Forester Retires

Carl D. Strauss, who has been with the Forest Service for 20 years, will retire Friday.

Strauss began his career with the Forest Service at the Ouachita National Forest in Arkansas, and was transferred to the Atlanta regional office's Division of State and Private Forestry, where he is head of the private forest management section. In World War II he was assistant director of the Timber Production War Project and later was loaned to the Army and State Department for work in West Germany.

His fellow workers will honor him at a luncheon Friday at the Woman's Club.

Work Course

Nine civilian employees attached to Third Army and 14 from Ft. McPherson have completed a six-weeks "work simplification" course at Ft. McPherson.

They studied proposals to eliminate waste in manpower, materials and money, James A. Randall, civilian instructor, said. They were awarded certificates by Maj. John F. Burns and Lt. Col. W. H. McNaul.

Third Army civilian workers who completed the course are Mrs. Gladys Hammer, Mrs. Dorothy Merrill, Mrs. Mary D. Andrews, Frank W. Wyant, Mrs. Ruth D. Enterkin, Pledged L. Hicks, Jeff D. Smith, Wilbur J. Ellison and Thelbert W. King.

Civilians at Ft. McPherson who received certificates were George W. Dunn, Mrs. Elizabeth M. Austin, Miss Sarah H. Brown, R. D. Stapp, Herbert Towns, Miss Mary E. Cain, Marshall W. Gatlin, Charles L. Head, Jessie Flannigan Jr., Johnnie B. Johnson, Mrs. Eleanor C. Wilson, Curtis E. Wigley, John H. Moore and Mrs. Patricia B. Gladden.

YWCA Offers Adults Camp Highland Outing

Pocahontases by the score are preparing for a powwow, 1953 style, Saturday and Sunday at Camp Highland.

The annual week-end outing sponsored by the Atlanta YWCA for grown-up girls is coming up.

With the camp taking an Indian theme this year, the outdoor girls will find moccasins, feathered chapeaux and blanket gowns in style.

"But blue jeans will be permissible," assures Miss Flora Holland, who is planning the outing.

Age limits are flexible, 18 years up, she says.

Two new cabins will be dedicated on Saturday afternoon at the Y's comfortable, woodsy camp. A barbecue will follow.

Transportation to and from Camp Highland will be provided, Miss Holland reports. And expenses will be very modest. Reservations should be made at the Atlanta YWCA. Membership in the Y is not necessary

Su Boney Wed to E. W. Milner

At an afternoon ceremony solemnized Sunday at Morningside Presbyterian Church, Miss Su Boney, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Bruce C. Boney of Decatur, became the bride of Edward Willis Milner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin C. Milner.

Officating were the bride's father and Dr. Arthur Van Gibson. Dr. Boney also gave his daughter in marriage.

Attending the bride were Mrs. John A. Haley as matron of honor, Mrs. C. E. Williams as bridesmaid, and Misses Mimi and Eleanor Milner as junior bridesmaids.

The bride wore the silk and rose point lace wedding gown worn by the bridegroom's grandmother, Mrs. E. N. O'Beirne Sr., which featured a lace yoke and lace inserts in the skirt. Her illusion veil, belonging to Mrs. William R. Jordan Jr., fell from a cap of lace, and she carried a family Bible adorned with tuberoses.

Gentlemen in the wedding were Ben C. Milner Jr. as best man, Joseph Milner, Joseph Whitner and Whitner Milner as groomsmen, Harrison Taylor and Douglas W. Hix as ushers.

After the ceremony the couple received their guests in the vestibule of the church.

Herb Gardens Pretty, Easy To Maintain

By YOLANDE GWIN

The good ol' summertime is a splendid season to dream up new ideas for the garden.

It is a well known fact that most men will bypass herbs in favor of begonias, dahlias, sweet corn, tomatoes and other plants that really make a show.

The ladies, on the other hand, are intrigued by herbs. Many of them such as basil, marigold, poppy, sweet marjoram, saffron and parsley are, in addition, valuable as flowering plants.

Herbs do not have particular soil requirements. Authorities state that growth will be more compact if no plant food is used in ordinarily good garden soil. A good variety of herbs can be grown in a small garden plot.

Basil grows about a foot high with small white flowers. The plants may be potted up in the fall and grown in the window garden to supply fresh leaves during the winter.

Marjoram is a perennial treated as an annual. It grows one to two feet high with white or purplish flowers. Anise is an easily grown annual with cream-colored flowers.

A long-time favorite is borage. This is valued as a pot herb and as a salad plant. Dill is another favorite. Its seeds are used for seasoning and the leaves may be used for flavoring soups or with cucumber pickles.

Mustards are annuals and variants of them are used as pot herbs, for salads, while the seeds are often used for seasoning pickles.

Delegates Take Pie To Mamie

By JEAN ROONEY

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 24—Southern charm busted out all over this Capital city Sunday as 33 of Georgia's women arrived for the annual convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, opening here Monday.

Never known to go-visiting without a gift, the home-loving Georgians brought a present to their "fellow Georgian," Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower, a home-baked Georgia pecan pie.

SECOND HOME

Georgia's Mrs. Eisenhower's second home," Mrs. Chester E. Martin, who heads the Peach's State's federation of women's clubs, reminded.

Well-filled suitcases accompanied the Southern travelers. They have a five-day calendar filled with engagements with Washington's "brass."

Vice President Richard Nixon will formally welcome them to the Capital at 8 p. m. Monday at Constitution Hall.

Paul Lavalle, conductor of the Band of America will serenade the girls with martial music.

Coming up between Monday and Friday are addresses by the country's top government women: Oveta Culp Hobby, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, and Ivy Baker Priest, U. S. Treasurer.

STASSEN SPEAKS

Harold E. Stassen, Mutual Security Agency director, and Gen. Carlos Romulo, former United Nations official, are in the impressive speaker's line-up.

Visits to embassies, backstage tours of the government and a jaunt to Mt. Vernon are some of the activities to face the Georgia women.

Already, Mrs. Martin has been appointed an official timekeeper for the convention. And Mrs. Marcus Calhoun of Thomasville, who heads junior members of the federation, is an official page.

Expressions Spotlight Face Features

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Let's analyze what makes a face different, for after all, everybody has a like set of features, similarly arranged. Mulling this over, I have concluded that the main difference is in individual expression.

Often we are self-conscious because some one feature falls far short of pleasing us—when actually the imperfection is scarcely apparent to anyone else, or if it is, only on passing.

MOST NOTICEABLE

It's the expression that's most noticeable about a face. For proof . . . one young woman, who had her nose changed at the time of an enforced operation, was quite puzzled that no one seemed to notice any difference in her appearance. Strangely enough, months later, she did look different to her friends. Since she no longer felt self conscious, her characteristic expression was more serene and happy.

It's an odd thing about facial expression. In conversing with someone who has just had her face lifted and so registers little of her feelings, I find myself speaking quite loud. Getting no facial response, I must think that I hadn't been heard.

FACE-LIFTING

Many requests come to this department for face-lifting exercises . . . logical enough since the face is composed of muscles. The cheeks are supported by eight muscles, four on each side. They are attached to the cheek bone and to the strong muscle surrounding the mouth, and still lower down are attached to the wide bandlike muscles of the jaw. Undoubtedly, exercising these muscles can give the face a lift.

However, the exercises to be of much value must be regular. Chewing is a natural exercise that keeps the muscles of the face toned. That's one reason why it is important to have a full complement of teeth on each side of the mouth.

Mica's Manna In Hartwell

HARTWELL—Ordinarily when anybody invites me to tour an industrial plant I feel just like I did as a child when I was company at somebody's house and they offered me boiled okra. I was caught between Muv's injunction to gracefully accept and eat whatever was served and an overpowering personal aversion to the stuff.

My stomach doesn't exactly revolt at the prospect of touring a factory or a mill. It's just that I know in advance it's all going to be beyond my comprehension and the spectacle of a lot of monstrous machines performing a lot of mysterious operations throws me into confusion bordering on panic.

But in Hartwell it's different. I've been viewing some of the local industrial plants and, oddly enough, loving it. I think it's because there's a sort of female richness and glamour about Hartwell industries.

Mica, for instance.

Did you know that Hartwell has the only placer (Louie Morris says you pronounce that "plasser") mine in the world engaged in mining mica particles?

That fact itself might give you a vague feeling of civic pride without making you want to go and look at the operation. But actually, the mica mine bears a fascinating resemblance to Marlene Dietrich's dressing room. (Without the Dietrich legs, I regret to add.)

The earth hereabouts is so full of mica particles that on a sunny day—or a moonlight night either, a local belle assured me—the land glitters and shines like a sky full of stars. Mica chunks are mined in some localities but here it's the little bits and pieces which are needed in the manufacture of paint, roofing paper and Christmas tree decorations.

The day I went to look at the plant, along with Editor Morris, they were hauling in the mica-filled dirt and washing it in great troughs through which a ladder-like thing worked, pushing out sand and rocks and sending the mica on into the bowels of the mills where it was further washed and sifted and finally ground up and sacked and shipped away to sell at a fancy price.

But the thing that impressed me was that in spite of the mud and the dirt and the sweat of the workmen the mica was so darned beautiful. As it moved through the trough it caught the light and sent off dancing beams like those sequin-studded dresses Marlene Dietrich used to wear.

The same thing stood out over at the Textron mill, where I saw them weaving gossamer-like materials from rayon fibers. That plant is one of these windowless, lintless marvels of soft light and perfect temperature. It has great roaring, clattering machines, of course, but there's a sort of poetic precision in the way in which they take a lot of gook from coal tar or clabber, or whatever it is Mr. du Pont is making his nylon of these days, and turn it into material as delicate and shining as a new-spun spider web with the dew on it.

Naturally it is not the beauty of these plants which makes Hartwell value them. It is the fact that they provide the work which, in turn, provides grocery money and trips to the dentist and television sets and garden seed for several hundred Hart County citizens. They and several other plants—the one which takes the hulls off cotton seeds and the shirt factory, for instance—mean a lot to Hart County economy.

But I think it's nice that their work is pretty, too. I enjoyed visiting them and, come to think of it, I also like boiled okra now.

Prolong Strawberry Season with Jams and Jellies

Jam Session Fills Shelf With Strawberry Spreads

By JEANNE HIGGINS

Strawberries, the leaders of the berry parade, are here today and gone tomorrow.

But, to prolong enjoyment of these crimson beauties fill your cupboard shelves with a supply of rosy jams and jellies.

FUN WITH FOODS

Strawberry jam and strawberry relish are no trouble at all, especially if you use the modern, short-boil method adding powdered fruit pectin.

STRAWBERRY JAM

4½ cups prepared fruit
7 cups sugar
1 2½-ounce box powdered fruit pectin

1. Crush completely about 2 quarts fully ripe strawberries. 2. Measure 4½ cups pulp into a large saucepan. 3. Measure sugar and set aside. 4. Add powdered fruit pectin to fruit in saucepan and mix well. 5. Place over high heat and stir until mixture comes to a hard boil. 6. At once stir in sugar. Bring to a full rolling boil, and boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly. 7. Remove from heat. Skim off foam with metal spoon. 8. Then stir and skim by turns for 5 minutes to cool slightly, to prevent floating fruit. Ladle quickly into glasses. 9. Cover jam at once with ⅛-inch hot paraffin. Makes 11 glasses.

STRAWBERRY RELISH

4 cups prepared fruit
7½ cups sugar
2 tablespoons vinegar
½ bottle liquid fruit pectin

1. Crush completely about 2 quarts fully ripe strawberries. 2. Add ¼ to 1 teaspoon each allspice, cinnamon, and cloves or any desired combination of spices. 3. Measure 4 cups fruit into a large saucepan. 4. Add sugar and vinegar to fruit in saucepan and mix well. 5. Place over high heat, bring to a full rolling boil, and boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and at once stir in liquid fruit pectin. 6. Skim off foam with metal spoon. 7. Then stir and skim by turns for 5 minutes to cool slightly, to prevent floating fruit. Ladle quickly into glasses. 8. Cover relish at once with ⅛-inch hot paraffin. Makes 11 glasses.

Your Stars Today

DAILY GUIDE—Some lingering overtones of yesterday's strong aspects remain today. The events are mostly political moves, with some reaction today from the masses. An accent on chemical warfare with discussion of new weapons or further extensions of atom bombs can be expected. On the personal level, be wary of too much energy or power getting out of hand: resist the impulse toward any kind of violence, dictatorship, or strongarm methods. This is an excellent week for publicity campaigns, publishing, advertising, correspondence, conferences, conventions and all types of communications and transportation. I think a great many people will be on the move and the weekend travel unusually heavy, with many getting an early start on trips this week. Those people born the early part of this week should take advantage of this very fortunate time for them to express their ideas.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY, GEMINI! This is really the exhilarating top of the mountain for you, so get your bearings and stake out your claims. The wonderful opportunities of this period will not come again soon, so don't waste too much time in enjoying the view. There is a little complication through indulgence in pleasure, speculation or romantic ideas. Concentrate on expressing your personality, putting your best foot forward, and discipling any playboy tendencies to dissipate your good fortune frivolously. You can seek advancement, ask for a raise, act on your ideas, start some new project or business, or travel, expand socially and in personal expression. If you have been waiting for the word "Go!"—this is it. Don't waste any time in getting started.

He began his career in 1897 with the Southern Railway and entered textile sales five years later. He served as sales manager and executive vice president of Cannon Mills before becoming president.

He was for many years a director of the Association of Cotton Textile Merchants.

KNOW YOUR GEORGIA — By C. J. Holleran

Death of a Nation

The first known inhabitants of the present location of Atlanta were the Creek Indians. These people played a prominent role in the transition of ownership of Georgia from the red to the white man. Long before the founding of our state, the Creeks supported the English in their war with Spain for possession of southern America. In 1703, when Governor Moore of South Carolina invaded the Chattahoochee Valley, near the site of Columbus, it was his Creek allies who bore the brunt of the campaign. This vicious and merciless expedition ended in the annihilation of the Apalachee Indian Nation. The official report from Spanish Governor Juniga of Florida to the King of Spain on March 30, 1704, says in part: "After having bound the unfortunate Indian prisoners by the hands and feet to stakes they set fire to them when they were burned up alive." The English released only one priest, a Spanish lieutenant and four soldiers. This was done on a promise of ransom. Bienville, the French commander of Mobile, reported to his government the entire Apalachee nation was destroyed. All of their towns, including the Spanish missions, were burned, their livestock driven away and crops destroyed. Only 400 persons survived the great massacre and these, he said, had taken refuge in French territory. Thirty years later, at the battle of Bloody Marsh, General Oglethorpe had the Creeks' alliance, which undoubtedly made his victory possible. In the early 1800s, the Creeks were driven from Georgia and their lands confiscated.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VanDELLEN

Some Overly Upset About Sleeping Habits

Sleep, according to Sigmund Freud, occurs when the mind withdraws completely from the surrounding world and ceases to be interested in what is going on.

There are other theories on sleep but none has been accepted as the gospel truth. As a matter of fact, it is just as hard to find reasons why we stay awake, which is the other main function of being alive.

Most authorities agree, however, there are certain centers in the brain which regulate sleep but there is no unanimity of opinion as to where they are located.

Others believe we have a wakefulness center and that sleep results when it becomes inactive. In other words, is it normal to be awake or asleep? Despite these speculations, sleep is universal and provides the only means of refreshing the body.

There are many varieties of true insomnia and the most common occurs among those who have difficulty in going to sleep. Their brain is stimulated as a result of "nerves" or through undue excitement, sorrow, pain, coughing, shortness of breath, or allied forms of discomfort.

Others with insomnia cannot sleep long enough to be completely rested. This type may be associated with inflammation of the brain or disturbances in circulation.

Another group sleeps fitfully and in such instances the brain is said to be restless because of excessive fatigue or improper sleeping conditions such as noise, too much light, a poor bed, or lack of ventilation in the room.

The world also is filled with individuals who regard themselves as poor sleepers but the majority do not realize they are obtaining as much sleep as they need.

The fidgety sleeper may complain of being awake all night but it just seemed like all night because actually the sleepless period was less than 30 minutes.

Sleep has received so much emphasis in the last few decades many persons are overly concerned when they do not obtain their quota. This has led to abuses, including the annual consumption of tons of sleep producing and sedative drugs.

The truth of the matter is, there is no simple and harmless substance that works with everyone.

JUST NUTS

A Rhyme a Day

"One of the nation's leading architects says American cities and towns are becoming too standardized, thereby losing much of the individual charm that once characterized some of earlier days."—Trade journal note.

There's always some familiar scene . . . that memory holds dear . . . some spot where all the grass was green . . . and all the streams were clear . . . but when you've been away for years . . . and visit it once more . . . somehow this favored spot appears . . . not as it was before.

The stream you loved is full of silt . . . and where the grass was green . . . a service station has been built . . . for oil and gasoline . . . all that is left of some great tree . . . is just a hollowed trunk . . . and you are much surprised to see . . . how everything has shrunk.

They've modernized the local bank . . . but someone's carried off . . . the cast-iron fountain where we drank . . . and that old water trough . . . where tired horses drank their fill . . . on some hot summer day . . . and twitched their hides and tails until . . . they drove the flies away.

Go back to see them, if you must . . . but be prepared to find . . . all of those lovely visions just . . . existed in your mind.

Mirror of Your Mind

By JOSEPH WHITNEY

Can you overcome nagging at your husband?

Answer: You probably can, since you are aware that it is a habit that needs correcting. However, when a husband-wife relationship has been marked by hurt feelings and hostility, you can't expect to wipe out these deficits overnight. If you have tried without success to cure yourself of nagging, you might consult a marriage counsellor or some other specialist in that field. Simply talking your problem out with a disinterested person may be all the help you need.

Do most people look forward to retirement?

Answer: Most young workers look forward to the time they will no longer have to work, but older people do not. According to a study conducted at Columbia Teachers College, the older worker has a deep resistance to retirement. It signifies the end of his long years of usefulness and the accompanying loss of prestige in his community. Most older workers feel that only through work can they maintain social contacts as useful members of society.

Should you flatter children?

Answer: Never! Children like praise, for it satisfies their need to feel important. However, they are quick to detect flattery and the average youngster is insulted by it. Flattery makes them feel they are being talked down to; being "kidded." Children are inclined to believe what grown-ups tell them, and when they recognize the falsity in flattering statements, they feel cheated and bewildered. Flattery undermines their confidence in adult truthfulness.

Ace Director Logan A Disappointed Actor

NEW YORK, May 24—Louisiana's Josh Logan, who won a Pulitzer Prize for the book of "South Pacific" and then directed the Pulitzer prize-winning "Picnic," this week got a big rap out of author William Inge's dedication of his book to him.

Wrote Inge: "To Josh Logan who gave of himself unsparingly in helping me to realize the play. I shall be always grateful."

And then he added in his own writing: "I ain't whistlin'."

Logan, despite all of the honors he's won as writer, director and producer, is not completely happy.

He is a frustrated actor who'd swap anything to be a Lunt, Laughton, Boyer or Olivier.

It may be that as an actor, and Logan had two chances at it, he was victimized by miscasting. Back in 1932, in two plays, "Carrie Nation" and "I Was Waiting for You," Logan twice played the role of bartender.

As a Louisianan, Logan could shake a New Orleans fizz with the best of them but he fizzled out as an actor. Then Howard Lindsay engaged him for "She Loves Me Not." Unluckily Logan understudied two performers who refused to get sick, and even though Josh slyly turned electric fans on Burgess Meredith and John Beal, they never even developed the sniffles.

As a form of compensation, Logan, when directing a play, acts out all the parts. "He's a great actor at these times," says Ralph Meeker, "but he leaves his fight in the gym."

Theater Manager Slain After First Shooting Fails

Gunman Wounds Victim in Shoulder, Returns for Fatal Attack, Police Say

TRYON, N. C., May 24—(AP)—A theater manager was found shot to death in his movie theater here today and police said he was apparently slain by a gunman who tried unsuccessfully to kill him a few hours earlier.

Edward Ball, about 40, who operates two movie houses here, had been shot in the mouth with a .32 caliber pistol. His car, parked outside, was riddled with six bullet holes.

Ball died a few hours after a local doctor treated him for an unexplained shoulder wound, caused by a .22 caliber weapon.

Police Chief Lewis Lindsay said the .22 caliber wound was not reported to police, "although it should have been."

Lindsay said the same person who shot Ball in the shoulder in the pre-dawn hours apparently changed weapons and went after him again, making certain he got his victim the second time.

"There were two different guns used in the two separate shootings, but I think the same person did the shooting," Lindsay said.

Edward Goodyear, a Tryon florist, said Ball telephoned him from his drive-in theater at 3:30 a. m. today and asked him to come help remove a bullet from his shoulder.

"I was in the wrong place at the wrong time," Goodyear quoted Ball as saying in explaining the wound.

The florist drove Ball to a doctor, who treated the wound and told him to come back later today to have the slug removed. The physician said the wound was not serious.

An inquest was scheduled for Monday.

The theater owner's wife and children have been living in Charlotte, N. C.

Assets Rose $56 Million, Union Says

New York Times News Service
Special to The Atlanta Constitution

CHICAGO, May 24—The country's richest union—the International Garment Workers Union, AFL—reported today that its assets in general and welfare funds had climbed to $166,100,140, a rise of $56,000,000 since the organization's last convention three years ago.

The disclosure that the garment union now had more money in its care than most banks was made by its president, David Dubinsky. When he took over the union leadership 21 years ago, shortly before Franklin D. Roosevelt was elected for his first term, the union was in debt to the exent of more than $750,000.

Dubinsky coupled his statistical analysis of how the union gets and spends its money with a forecast that its income would go up about $1,000,000 a year as a result of the Eisenhower administration's decision to increase the interest rate on government bonds.

The union, which has criticized the administration action on the grounds that it would benefit banks and other financial institutions at the expense of the general welfare, has $125,000,000 of its assets invested in federal bonds.

Nude Marine Crashes Lobby, Admiral's Room

WASHINGTON, May 24—(AP)—A 24-year-old Marine lieutenant dashed through a staid hotel lobby stark naked while a dance was in progress today.

2nd Lt. Francis O. Gallagher, who police said had been drinking, left all his clothes—including his socks—on the lawn outside the hotel.

The Boston Marine, recently graduated from the Quantico, Va., Marine Training Base, had been attending a dance at the Shoreham Hotel. He felt the need of fresh air and took his date for a stroll over to the Wardman Park Hotel.

With apparently no warning, he suddenly disrobed.

His date ran off screaming.

Gallagher decided to make a "surprise" entrance on a private party given by some of his friends at the Wardman Park. He scrambled up a tree and entered the hotel on the second floor.

The window he broke through led him into the room of Vice Adm. Emory S. Land, U. S. N., Ret.

Mrs. Land's screams brought the house detective running.

He chased Gallagher through the building.

The Marine ran down to the first floor and in desperation burst through a closed door. It entered on the hotel's lobby.

A cocktail dance was in progress.

THE AFTERMATH HURTS, TOO

Auto Tragedy Claims 9th Life

By LEE FUHRMAN

You read lots of stories in the newspapers about death on the highways, fatal automobile crashes. Every day such news appears, and you read the stories and tell yourself, "What a terrible thing," and then you forget them.

For the aftermath seldom gets into the news, the impact of highway tragedies, and the devastation wrought by them to families, people like yourself.

This is the story of an aftermath. Its the story of a 3-year-old lad named Wayne Andrews, who is a patient in the Scottish Rite Hospital. Wayne's mother, Mrs. Lee Roy Andrews Jr., died of head injuries Sunday in an Augusta hospital.

She was the ninth—yes, the ninth—victim of a crash on Highway 42 shortly before midnight Saturday, April 18. The crash, which occurred a quarter of a mile north of the Jackson, Ga., city limits, was described by investigators as one of the greatest highway debacles in the history of the state.

Wayne was in his mother's arms, asleep, when the crash came. His brother, Eugene, 6, was asleep in the back seat, in the arms of his grandmother, Mrs. Lee Roy Andrews Sr., 65, of Montezuma. She was killed instantly.

Wayne's daddy, a 42-year-old construction worker, also was killed. So was Wayne's grandfather, the elder Andrews. So was another relative, Mrs. Mary Maxine Ward, 60, also of Montezuma. All were killed outright.

Four persons in the other car were killed.

Wayne and Eugene survived. Wayne suffered a concussion of the brain and both legs were broken. Doctors say he will recover. Only recently has he begun to ask for mama and daddy, and his grandma and grandpa, whom he loved and who loved him.

Eugene was crushed in the face, requiring plastic surgery. He also suffered a broken leg. Now he is with an aunt in Punta Gorda, Fla.

That Saturday afternoon of the fatal day, the father had signed papers for a new home on McAfee Rd. in Decatur. Wayne and Eugene never spent a night there.

Relatives also revealed the father was to have taken an examination the following Wednesday for $10,000 insurance. Death on the highway interfered.

What of the future of Wayne and Eugene? That, too, remains part of the aftermath of a highway crash six weeks ago.

Arlene Dahl, on Way to Savannah Premiere, Says She's in Love, Expects To Marry Soon

By PAUL JONES

Arlene Dahl, gorgeous redhead who lives up to her reputation as the "most beautiful woman in the movies," announced here Sunday night that she and Ferdando Lamas are "very much in love and hope to be married soon."

Miss Dahl, enroute to Savannah, where she will attend the world premiere of "Sangaree" in which she and Lamas co-star, answered persistent rumors about their reported romance by saying: "We're in love."

When asked if they planned to be married, she replied, "All people in love have that goal. We are very happy to be in love and hope that everything works out right for both of us."

WRITES BEAUTY COLUMN

The actress, who writes a syndicated column of beauty hints for women, radiated enthusiasm as she spoke of the Latin star who broke into the movies only two years ago. She compared him to Clark Gable, whom she said she admired when she was a schoolgirl movie fan and said, "He has a magnetism and warmth. He's the most considerate actor I've ever worked with. . . . In short, he's a 'good guy.'"

Miss Dahl seemed excited about her first three-dimensional picture, "Sangaree," which, incidentally, opens at the Paramount Theater Wednesday. When asked if three-dimensional technique flattered a trim feminine figure, she commented: "Whatever you have it shows up. It it's good, then it's good. If it's bad . . . then that's bad.

She was, of course, commenting on reports that 3-D tended to accentuate curves and to picture, unflatteringly, an untrim waistline.

HERE WEDNESDAY

She said she will return to Atlanta Wednesday morning to participate in a second premiere at the Paramount Theater here. "And I intend to take a tourist's tour of the city. I want to visit all of the historic spots here.

Miss Dahl said she wanted to visit a certain hamburger shop in Atlanta. She named she shop and said "they had those in my own home town."

Accompanying her to Savannah and then back to Atlanta is Bill Pine, producer of "Sangaree." The movie was adapted from a Frank Slaughter novel. It is set on an old plantation in Savannah. The Savannah premiere is set Tuesday night at the Lucas and Weis Theaters.
